COAST GUARD BRIBE PROBE HERE

MYSTERY SHROUDS INVESTIGATION OF RUM RUNNING LEAKS

In the midst of elaborate rum-runner preparations for flooding Boston and New England with holiday liquor, Captain William J. Wheeler, chief of the United States Coast Guard, is in the Hub today investigating alleged corruption and bribery in the Hub liquor patrol.

Coincident with the arrival of Captain Wheeler and two assistants, Commanders A. R. Arnold and H. P. Rees, it was learned at least one Coast Guard captain has been called up to answer charges.

Many rumors of rum smuggling by coastguards and of bribes paid them by the professional rum-runners have been prevalent for some time prior to the arrival of Captain Wheeler.

Ordinary patrolmen on coastguard crews are declared to have received as high as $150 for a single trip on rum boats.

Close secrecy surrounds the investigation.

Captain Wheeler came here after a general housecleaning in New Jersey coast guard circles.

He refused to be interviewed and confined his remarks to saying that his purpose in coming to Boston was "purely for routine matters."

But it was learned authoritatively from other sources that a general shakeup in the Eastern Division, which stretches from Canada to New London, may follow Wheeler's investigation.

It was learned that a number of enlisted men in the service were under surveillance. It was explained that a number of non-commissioned officers are in command of the majority of patrol boats. These men have been watched for traces of the leak of rum-running speed boats which have been landing the cargoes along the coast.

It is known to certain officers

GIRL SOBS ON STAND AS SHE TELLS OF 'PETTING RIDES' WITH OFFICIAL

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 26.—Sobbing throughout her ordeal on the witness stand in the trial of Sheriff Wallis L. Fairbanks, whom she accuses of being too friendly with her, pretty Irma Stoodley, State ward, today told of "petting parties" on lonely auto rides she alleges she took with the accused official. She was compelled to bare full details of her relations with the sheriff under a merciless questioning.

The girl ceased to sob only when letters purporting to have been written her by Fairbanks were introduced and read. The letters were for the most part more business-like than loving.

However, the girl started weeping afresh when one letter from herself to the sheriff was introduced. This told of how she had been accused to Mrs. J. R. Eldridge, by whom she was employed, of being friendly with her employer's husband.

"Letter," the girl wrote, "she found out that she had charged me unjustly, and she apologized. She said she was sorry for the charge she had made and that she wanted me to stay with the family."

MADEIROS GRANTED RESPITE TO JAN. 27

Governer Fuller today, with the approval of the executive council, granted a respite to Celestino Madeiros, condemned to die this week for murder and who confessed a part in the murder for which Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted.

The respite, recommended by Attorney-General J. Benton and District Attorney Wilbar, extends his life to January 27, 1927.

This is the second time that Madeiros has been given a respite on the eve of his execution.

The people was granted so that he may 5 son hand as a material witness if the Supreme Court grants Sacco and Vanzetti a new trial.

The recommendation made by the attorney general said that "the orderly administration of criminal justice required a further respite."

The attorney general went on to point out that an appeal to the decision of Judge Thayer in the Sacco-Vanzetti case was on its way to Supreme Court and that in the event that the court reversed Judge Thayer's decision, Madeiros would be a material witness.

Warden Hendry of State Prison, who had planned to move Madeiros to the death house tonight in the event of an adverse decision by the Governor, was waiting at the State House. After getting word he went to the prison to notify the condemned man.

Madeiros was to have paid the penalty during the week beginning Thursday for the slaying of a Wrentham bank cashier.

Ruin for Cotton Growers
The Shah of Persia
On Advising Voters
Farewell Trotzky

(Copyright, 1926, by the Star Company.)

BELGIUM GOES on a gold basis, the franc stabilising at two and three-quarter cents in real money.

The American cotton farmer goes on a ruination basis in this land of gold, with cotton at the lowest price since 1921, suddenly dropping yesterday $1 to $1.50 a bale.

This makes Manchester and the British cheerful, for they buy cotton with which they clothe the heathen all over the world.

COTTON'S sudden drop proves that while government seems unable to help cotton farmers, it is able to hurt them.

The government estimate of the 1926 cotton crop at 17,454,000 bales, almost a million bales above the October first estimate, means ruin to thousands of cotton growers.

IT ALSO MEANS, which is more important to politicians, a combination of Southern Congressmen and the Western farm bloc in the next Congress. Such a combination will worry the Administration.

THE NEW PERSIAN Shah and dictator, Reza Khan, seems to have the good luck of other dictators, Mussolini, Kemal, De Rivera, etc. A bomb meant for him killed others. It can be relied upon to show even Mussolini how to suppress such attempts.

PERSIAN RULERS don't stop half way. You remember the Persian Shah whose wife sent word from the grave that she was cold because her wardrobe

TWO YEARS SENTENCE FOR FORMER B. U. GIRL

Mrs. Dorothy L. Goodrich of Billerica, former Boston University student, was sentenced to two and one half years in the House of Correction, today in East Cambridge Court. She was before Judge Stone.

The young wife, who is alleged to have stolen $50 from E. Stanley Back of Highland avenue, Arlington, through selling him furniture that had been leased, appealed the sentence and was held in $1,000 for Superior Court.

Two couples complained of Mrs. Goodrich, but only one court charge was made. Mr. and Mrs. Winfred Linfield of Brighton said they returned from their honeymoon to find their apartment stripped of furnishings they had bought from Mrs. Goodrich.

Stanley and his wife were confronted by a similar situation when they returned from their honeymoon. Mrs. Goodrich was arrested at Stanley's home.

SIMPSON DARES HALL JURY TO INDICT HIM

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 26.—The Somerset County Grand Jury by resolution ordered Special Prosecutor Simpson out of the room today.

The action was taken after Simpson had been before the Grand Jury for ten minutes.

called back to Rumania by King Ferdinand.

A specific denial of this was issued through one of Her Majesty's spokesmen. Nevertheless mysterious conferences were held in the royal section of the special train. The Rumanian secret service man aboard also showed exceeding activity.

GIVEN "SLAVE BRACELET."

Owing to the lack of time a part of the program arranged in honor of the Queen at the Falls was omitted. While here the royal train was placed under a strong police guard.

Her Majesty, with cold improved, left American hospitality for a few days with a beautiful "slave bracelet" clasped to her shapely wrist. The jewelry was a gift from the city of Buffalo. It was of white gold studded with jade and cost the city fathers $175.

The Buffalo City Council went to considerable trouble to give Her Majesty a royal reception. They even wired the royal party if dress suits and high hats would be the proper receiving uniform. A royal attache wired back that it was "customary," and the welcoming committee appeared faultlessly attired.

Even the waiters at the royal dinner wore white gloves.

"I don't like it," declared one veteran waiter, "It makes me fumble my tips."

The radio situation for the second time confused Queen Marie. Back in New York Her Majesty misunderstood a broadcasting appointment and disappointed millions of fans.

GREETED BY AN INDIAN.

In Buffalo a spirophone faced her as she arose to make her address. One of her aide-de-camps advised her not to talk into the radio without a prepared speech. The Queen demurred only a few formal words in consequence. The incident had previously been advertised as a "talk by Her Majesty."

Queen Marie continued today to talk about the tremendous ovation she received in Syracuse, where fifty thousand persons greeted her. An Indian chief in tribal regalia welcomed Her Majesty to the city.

Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas appeared as delighted as two children with the new scenic beauties revealed on their upstate trip.

The royal train was due in Toronto late this afternoon. It will leave for Montreal shortly after midnight.

of the First Division, now under command of Captain George Carmine, that at least one important change will soon be made in the personnel at headquarters in the Customs House.

Whether the reported investigation now underway, results in the filing of charges of corruption and resultant trial of officers or men of Captain Carmine's forces, is a question which no Coast Guard official will affirm or deny.

A story to the effect that a member of the guard has been accused of accepting a bribe, and that a thorough probe into the alleged "one shore" connections of various men of the first district personnel to the present sitting here of Captain Wheeler and his aides, has been heard in Coast Guard circles for many days.

At the hotel where Captain Wheeler and Commanders Russ and Arnold are quartered, great precautions are being taken to protect the Washington officials from interference.

At the Customs House offices of the Coast Guard it was stated that an examining board was here from Washington examining officers for promotion. No further information concerning the scope of the examination could be obtained and an officer of the local division was unable to furnish the names of the "examiners here."

POPE BLESSES MARRIAGE

Northampton, Oct. 26. (A. P.)—A papal message cabled from Rome blessed the marriage of Mayor William M. Welch of this city and Miss Marguerite Brophy of Lee, which was solemnized in St. Mary's Church, Lee, this morning at 9 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Daniel F. Daley of Worcester and nuptial mass celebrated by Rev. Andrew J. Daley, also of Worcester both cousins of the groom. A number of the Catholic clergy from this part of the State, as well as members of the Northampton city government and police department attended the wedding.

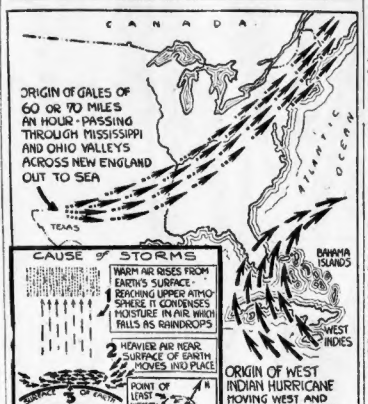
ORIGIN AND COURSE OF HURRICANES, GALES



BOTH TYPES CAUSE HEAVY LOSSES

The origin of West Indian hurricanes and gales similar to that which yesterday swept New England, causing $250,000 damage in Massachusetts alone, is traced in the above illustration of Meteorologist George H. Loveland's explanations.

EXPLAINS GALE AND HURRICANE

Tremendous cold air pressure, bearing down on surface heat, caused the hurricanes which laid waste to cities and towns in Florida and Cuba, and also caused the gale which swept New England yesterday, George H. Loveland, meteorologist, explained in a statement to the Boston Evening American.

By GEORGE H. LOVELAND
(U. S. Meteorologist and Boston Weather Forecaster)

As regards the West Indian hurricanes:

The heat equator or moving center of heat is located southeast of Florida in the West Indies after the autumnal solstice or "doldrums."

Heat waves, propelled into action by the rotary motion of the earth on its axis start swirling and whirling at great speed and velocity at this center of heat and move northward at the rate of from 120 to 180 miles an hour, while cold air from above bears down and creates an area of tremendous pressure near the earth's surface. The heat can't rise up, neither can it decrease therefore the powerful destructive whirling near the earth's surface.

It blows and swirls in a great circle reaching a diameter of from 400 to 800 miles. Usually it recurves as it nears the coast of Florida in its northward course and sweeps out to diminish and die far out in the Atlantic.

At other times these "West Indians" move northward along the Atlantic coast until the fury of the tempest is abated by colder air currents.

The hot air finally rises and the hot, gaseous currents are transformed into rain when the forces of hot and cold air "fight it out" far above the earth.

The high gales and tornadoes which curve northeastward from Texas and the Gulf regions originate in the same manner. These storms are common to New England in the Winter season. Their speed is rarely more than from 60 to 70 miles an hour.

can affect them favorably. It is too bad. The defendants are not to blame, and I am sorry for them.

"The Grand Jury intended to meet here today and find no indictments and then leave me hanging the bag, but I think they are the ones holding the empty sack."

In telling reporters of the impression he gathered during his short stay with the jurors, Simpson said: "INDICT GOVERNOR, TOO."

"I think they might try to indict me. I told them that why me they could indict Governor Moore, who appointed me, the Attorney General whom I represent, and Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker."

One of the jurors said Senator Simpson had gone before the Grand Jury and demanded that he be indicted. This, they said, was an aftermath of the report that the grand jurors were to investigate the investigators.

The sudden departure of Simpson came as a surprise, since only last night Foreman W. Percival Snyder of the Grand Jury issued a statement which indicated the differences between the prosecutor and the jurors had been smoothed over.

HOW TROUBLE STARTED.

The trouble first started when at the last session Simpson announced that he would not present further evidence until Thursday, as certain witnesses would not be available until then. The foreman threatened to continue the investigation whether Simpson appeared with witnesses or not.

The special prosecutor replied with a suggestion that he might be forced to take the case to the Grand Jury of some other county.

The evidence which Simpson hopes to present is in connection with alleged accessories to the murders.

Only sixteen of the twenty-three members of the Grand Jury were present at today's session.

Two of those against whom Simpson is seeking indictments as accessories are Felix de Martini, private detective, and Mrs. Minna Clark. Di Martini conducted an investigation for Mrs. Hall.

WIDOW GETS RUSH WEDDING

FINDS FAMILY OF 8 STARVING

BRIDE IN NUN HABIT

MRS. STURGIS TO BE BRIDE OF FARMER

Romance ripened rapidly at City Hall today and intentions of marriage, with the five-day law later waived, were taken out for a Boston society widow and a "gentleman farmer" of Farmington, Ct.

The cause for speed and the waiving of the five-day requirement by Judge Dowd came through necessity of the intended bride's father, Edward Bowditch, to leave Boston on a trip and the couple desired to be married before his departure.

The marriage intentions were between Mrs. Alice Rathbone Sturgis, formerly Alice Rathbone Bowditch of No. 60 Quail street, West Roxbury, and A. Douglas Dodge, forty-seven of Farmington, whose first marriage it will be.

When the reason for haste was given City Registrar McGlennen he arranged for an audience with Judge Dowd, who granted the five-day waiver in the Municipal Court.

Mrs. Sturgis described her occupation on the intentions as "at home." She was born in Albany, N. Y., but practically all her life has been spent as a resident of Boston.

Dodge was born in New York city. He described himself as a farmer by occupation.

SOUTH BOSTON POLICE GIVE FIRST AID

Charitable Bostonians need look no further than South Boston for deserving objects, for at No. 246 West Third street Mrs. Louise Henry and her seven children—the eldest 11—are actually starving.

The father, Patrick Henry, a Gloucestreman, is in a New York hospital with two broken ribs and he has been able to send his family only $20 in nine weeks. The children are John 14, James, 10; Edward, 8; Mary, 11; Louise, 9, Helen, 6, and baby Leo, 1 year old.

In the house when a Boston Evening American reporter entered there was just half a pound of tea for a "meal" for the eight.

Sergeant McGilvray of Station 6, who first learned of their condition, took the mother to St. Vincent's Church where she was given a $3 order for groceries.

She was then taken to Overseer of the Poor John Lynch, who said red-tape tied his hands; that Mrs. Henry must have her husband arrested for non-support and then the city could help her.

But, through her tears, Mrs. Henry said she had no idea where her husband is in New York, and did not believe he would willingly leave his family to starve if he could help it.

FEARS FAILURE IN TEST; WINS SCHOLARSHIP

If Miss Henrietta Oberstein, 16-year-old New York pianist, will pause long enough in her Boston wanderings today to let her father catch up with her, she will learn that instead of failing in her examination at the New York Conservatory of Music, she has been awarded a scholarship there.

Miss Oberstein left her home in New York Oct 2, after she had taken two examinations at the conservatory. She had a feeling that she had failed, and she did not return home after the second test.

Clarion Oberstein, of No. 1466 Madison avenue, New York, searched for his daughter in Hartford, New Haven and other cities. Then he came to Boston.

At the Y. W. C. A. home on Berkley street he learned that his daughter, who is lame and carries a cane, had stopped there two weeks. Then she moved saying she would call for her mail.

Once Mr. Oberstein believed he had located her. While at the Y. W. C. A. the girl called on the telephone to inquire if there was any mail. The matron told her there was an important communication waiting for her. She promised to call and get it. But Miss Oberstein did not show up at the Y. W. C. A., as she had promised.

EARL ACCUSES HIS AMERICAN COUNTESS

London, Oct. 26 (I.N.S.)—With Earl Cowley undergoing a severe cross-examination, and the Countess Cowley in a burst of tears in the courtroom, London society was aroused to a state of intense interest today.

The Earl named Humphrey Kent of London and his counsel charged the Countess with intemperance.

Upon cross-examination the Earl admitted that his wife had accused him of friendship "with a certain lady" and also of taking cocaine. He denied both of these charges.

It was then suggested that the Earl's affections were engaged elsewhere than with his wife and that he as in love with "a certain actress." The Earl denied this and said he could deny it even if the actress were named.

Counsel for the Countess continued its cross-examination of the Earl about the possibility of his being in love with another woman.

Aged Killer Ends 54 Years in Jail; Wants to Die in Cell

Fond Du Lac, Wis., Oct. 26 (A.P.)—Old Bill Maxwell has rounded out his fifty-fourth year at the State prison at Waupun. He is eighty-six years old and is spending his last days in jail, awaiting death.

Maxwell is a man of mystery. He has never spoken unless spoken to. Half a century ago he killed a man over a woman and a sheriff saved him from being lynched.

He has always refused to ask for a pardon and expressed the wish to die in prison.

ARMY FLIRE IS KILLED AS HE DOES MOVIE 'STUNT'

San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 26 (A.P.)—Cadet Charles M. Smiley of the pursuit group, Selfridge Field, Michigan, who was killed in a midair collision here, died while playing an aviation role for a motion picture, the official statement of his death issued today, revealed. Cadet Smiley was one of seven pilots operating from an "enemy airdrome." The ruse called for him to simulate a dive into th Aemerican troops advancing on a hill. In diving so his machine telescoped and crushed him to death.

STORES TO GIVE OUT MARTHA LEE COUPONS

Important news on the Martha Lee Homemakers Contest. Vital news, meaning dollars to many. News for every woman in New England. Reprints of the first ten questions of the contest have been distributed to the Atlantic & Pacific Stores and the Economy Grocery Stores.

So don't wait another day. You don't have to make a special trip to the Boston Evening American office to get the coupon you missed. You don't have to write in for back copies, or for a reprint. You can go to your nearest A. & P. Store, or the Economy Grocery Store, and pick up your reprint when you do your morning marketing.

The reprint gives you the first ten coupons, containing the first ten questions, in exactly the same form as they appeared in the Boston Evening American. Also the rules governing the contest, the list of judges, the distribution of prizes and other data which means solid cash to you.

Here comes the Eleventh question.

Which sugar should be used in uncooked frostings — Powdered or Confectioners?

There you are. That's another step you can take without stumbling. Another step toward that first prize, which will fit in so well to your needs.

If you don't quite make the first prize, you may step right into the second of $100. The third prize is $75, fourth prize, $50 and fifth prize, $25. Ten contestants are going to receive prizes of $10 each, and the following twenty-five, $5 each.

Wait for the last day of the contest before sending in any coupons. It ends Saturday, November 20, and no answers will be considered until that day. Nothing but entire sets of the thirty-three questions will be judged. On November 20, send them to the Homemakers Contest Judges, Boston Evening American, P. O. Box 110, Boston, Mass.

The judges are old friends of all who have been interested in the art of homemaking and the science of household economy. Mrs. Ida M. Bigelow, president of the Housekeepers' League; Miss Alice Bradley, principal of Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, and Martha Lee.

'Wonder Heart' Notes Reveal Hall's Love

This is the second installment of the series of letters written by Mrs. Charlotte Mills and the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall.

The first of Dr. Hall's letters to Mrs. Mills that the investigators found also was undated. It was the first of a series of "wonder heart" letters, and made reference to their frequent meetings in "our road." It follows:

"Dear, Dear Tender Wonder Heart of Mine! Have you felt what an exalted mood I am in today? Dearest, I have so longed to talk, talk, talk with you while holding you in my arms.

"I am not wild or fierce today, but peaceful, calm, strong, exalted. Such an assurance—I feel like Tennyson's strong son of God Immortal. Love. Cheerio, Dear Heart.

Mrs. Eleanor Mills

Dr. E. W. Hall

"I want to hold you close—commune with you—hold you tight with my left arm and stroke your dear, firm, face with my right—and look deep into those wonder eyes—hazel eyes.

"Dearest, you are like a crystal to me. I will call them crystal eyes—I seem to see and feel all the awe and wonder of the universe in them—and I am full of awe and wonder today.

"So I want you this afternoon. I want you and musie, and I will bring the victrola. I have been thinking a great deal about prayer. Have you been praying this morning—for me?

"I feel sure you must have been, even if you were not conscious of it! Love and prayer—what wonderful powers! Isn't psychic influence strange and wonderful?

"Let us meet at our road so you will not have to wait at 2:15. I will get there first if it rains. If you suggest any other plan, call up 24 between 1:30 and 2:00 and I will answer the phone.

"Beloved heart, you are all the wonder of life for me today—life, love, mystery, will power, affection, all are bound up in you, the true love, the mother of all life and love for me!

"I feel your firm, strong fingers gripping mine as we crush one another in a firm, strong embrace, you darling."

In the second of the "wonder heart" letters, Dr. Hall relates the joy of their meeting in "our road." It read:

A GAY GYPSY

"Oh, you dear, dear wonder heart! What a cheerio dear heart you have been today! Darling, what a gay gypsy you were this afternoon!

"Simply could not wait until tonight to see you and to find you so full of life and spirits! Oh, how I wanted to stop and play with you, but I couldn't there, and then there was our ride. But we will play some day next week.

"Darling, it is so good to see you well and your old dear self again—wasn't it a lovely ride? I hated to leave you out downtown—but it seemed wisest—it would look queer to go all way up to Carman street first—and it was just the time people would be on the streets—so it was best, even if hard, to do as we did. Wasn't it, dear?

HEARS HER VOICE

"Darling, the choir is singing hymns, and I love to listen and know your dear voice is singing out the lovely words, and your heart, too—there is something divine in the way you sing hymns—even love them so—you could easily be a song evangelist.

"People love to hear you sing hymns—there is a pathos and tenderness in your voice that people feel.

"Darling, I must go in now and look at my dear heart while she sings. Good night, beloved. All my heart's love for you. There is a deep, deep joy of peace in our hearts tonight."

HYMN OF HATE CAUSED KLAN SECESSION

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 26.—This is the last installment of an expose of the Ku Klux Klan's domination of Indiana State politics and government by Court Asher, former aid to D. C. Stephenson, Klan dictator.

By COURT ASHER

I have before me a two-page proclamation broadcast by D. C. Stephenson, Czar of Indiana and master of the Ku Klux Klan in that State, at the height of his bitter quarrel with Hiram Wesley Evans, the Imperial Wizard, and Earl Scarl, the grand dragon.

This proclamation was intended to be followed by an announcement of the organization of the "Nobles of the North," a rival organization which Stephenson intended forming to combat the Southern Klans.

The manifesto is headed:

"The old man's answer to the hate venders."

"To the faithful sons of Hoosierdom the hour of fate has struck. The venality and jealousy of the men who carried the rebel flag in '61 is now invading Indiana in the form of State order No. 87, dated April 14. It bore the signature of a poor Hoosier boy who found himself in the fell clutch of circumstances and being without moral courage became to be master of his own destiny.

ASSAILS SOUTHERNERS.

"It was a cowardly attempt on the part of a few 'Yellow livered' Southerners who hate everything that is pure throughout the State of Indiana. There plan is to double cross and sell out our organization to the common enemy and defeat all our men in November.

"The entire affairs of the national organization are in the hands of three Southerners whose hate for Indiana is measured in exactly the same proportion that they are unable to use this State for their own selfish purposes, with no restraint of honor nor concern for our welfare.

ASSAILS NATIONAL HEAD.

"The present national head is an ignorant, uneducated, uncouth individual who eats peas with his knife. He has neither courage nor culture. He cannot talk intelligently, and he cannot keep a coherent conversation going on any subject for five minutes.

"His speeches are written by hired intelligence. The only thing he has ever been known to do was to launch an attack upon the character and integrity of men eminent in letter and virtue.

CONTINUE TO FIGHT.

"Now that the boys continue to fight as they have never fought before to put across the wonderful program we have set out to accomplish, upon the successful conclusion of which we have been challenged to prove our right to very existence."

26 FRATERNAL INSURANCE LICENSES THREATENED

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 26 (A.P.)—Twenty-six fraternal organizations, with headquarters in eleven different States, faced the possibility today of losing their licenses to sell insurance in Pennsylvania.

An order calling on the organizations to show cause on November 9, why their licenses should not be revoked was issued by Elmer Bartford, State insurance commissioner.

Mr. Barford said that he had found some "excellent fraternal societies" doing business in Pennsylvania, but that many concerns had shown expenses running too high.

TWO UNION OFFICIALS HELD IN MURDER PLOT

San Francisco, Oct. 26 (A.P.)—Two union officials, Archie Mooney, vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, and Paul Clifford, business manager of Carpenters' Local No. 457, are under arrest here on charges of criminal conspiracy and assault with intent to commit murder.

In alleged confessions by George Fredman and Jack Kilrain, union carpenters, they were named as ring leaders in a campaign of violence that resulted in C. W. Campbell, a non-union worker, being beaten to death last week.

EAGLES HOME OFFICIAL PAYS LIQUOR FINE

Pittsfield, Oct. 26.—John H. Norton of the Eagles Home on First street pleaded guilty in District Court to illegal keeping of liquor and paid a fine of $100.

He also pleaded guilty to charges of maintaining a liquor nuisance and having gaming implements in his possession.

AMNESIA VICTIM WEALTHY WAR VET

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 26 (A.P.)—Identified as Asa F. Mathers, a wealthy real estate man missing from his home in Joliet, Ill., since October 6, the World War veteran found here Sunday suffering from amnesia, is now en route to his home.

Police were informed by Joliet relatives that Mathers, gassed during his overseas service, was subject to lapses of memory.

GIRL TELLS OF 'PETTING PARTIES' ON AUTO RIDES WITH SHERIFF

have any special business that would bring you to that school? A.—No.

Q.—Did you have any object for going there? A.—No.

Q.—After you did get there, what was the first thing that happened? A.—I got in the back seat of the automobile.

Q.—What happened in the back seat? Again the witness burst into tears, and Attorney Austin once more changed his method of questioning.

Q.—Did he caress you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Then what happened? A.—He then turned the car around and we went home.

Q.—Up until that time did he make any claim on you? A.—He said to me: "Do as I ask you to."

Q.—What was his reason for saying this? A.—None.

Q.—Before this occasion, had he done something to befriend you? A.—Yes.

Q.—On May 3, 1926, were you in some court trouble at Bellows Falls? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did he do? A.—Got me probation.

Q.—What were you arrested for at that time? A.—For driving an automobile while I was intoxicated.

Q.—Were you sentenced for it? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know that he fixed it up to get you probation? A.—I know I got probation, but I can't tell you how he fixed it up.

Q.—Then what happened? A.—He told me he would look after me.

Q.—Did he say anything about guardianship? A.—No.

Q.—What happened after you got probation? A.—Nothing in court.

Q.—Did you ever do any work for him for pay?? A.—No.

Q.—Did he owe you any money? A.—No.

AUTO RIDE IN DARK.

Q.—Do you know any reason why he should owe you money? A.—No.

Q.—You said you met him several times. When was the first time? A.—When he drove me to Springfield and then to Chester.

Q.—Following the court case what did he do for you that week? A.—I asked him to find me a job and he said he would.

Q.—Did he take you in an automobile? A.—Yes.

Q.—When was that? A.—May 8

Q.—What did he do for you?

—Why, he took me for an auto ride.

Q.—Where did you go? A.—We went to a house in Chester that had fallen down.

Q.—Anybody in it? A.—No.

Q.—What became of the car? A.—It parked it by the roadside.

Q.—Was it a lonely spot? A.—There was a house across the way.

Q.—What time was it? A.—Seven or eight o'clock in the evening.

Q.—Was it dark? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he get you a place to work? A.—Yes, with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Eldredge, in Waterbury.

SHERIFF GOT HER A JOB.

Q.—When did you go to work there? A.—Either May 16 or May 17. I place the date because it was two weeks after my court case.

Q.—Did the sheriff see you after that? A.—Yes. We took an automobile ride to Battleville, six or seven miles from Chester.

Q.—Where in Battleville? A.—I don't know exactly. There were houses nearby and a bridge.

Q.—Did he caress you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you write him any letters? A.—No.

Q.—Did you receive any letters from him? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever see the sheriff write? A.—No.

Q.—Do you exchange letters with him? A.—Yes.

One letter said to have been written by the sheriff to the witness read:

"Dear Friend—Your letter arrived and I was glad to hear from you. I am also glad that you like the people you are with and the job. They have got to be nice to you because I want them to treat you nicely. I may drive down to see you. Watch the papers for news of my election. I will keep you posted on the news.

"If you get along nicely on this job it would be good for you to go to business school. I wish I had gone to one. Be sure and write. Good night. Yours truly, Wallis P. S.—Judge O'Brien is pleased that I got you the job. He told me to look after you.

Q.—Question by Attorney Austin—On May 21, how old were you? A.—Twenty.

Q.—When were you twenty-one? A.—July 2.

COULD BE "HELP TO HIM."

Q.—Did you ever do any work in the sheriff's office? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever go to business school? A.—No.

Q.—Have you ever had any business training? A.—No.

In another of the letters introduced the sheriff practically promised the girl a position in his office. This letter said:

"I've been thinking that if my business keeps increasing the way it has in the past year I will have to have an office of my own and someone to help me. I know a girl who will soon be twenty-one, and who you were in Waterbury?. A.—Yes, he gave me $13.

Q.—Did you earn this money? A.—No.

Q.—Did you give him any property which would entitle you to $13? A.—No.

All told eleven letters, purporting to have been written by Sheriff Fairbanks to Irma, were introduced in all of them the writer expressed his friendship for the girl, but there was nothing that suggested love-making. He signed himself simply "Yours truly, Wallis," or sometimes "Ever your friend, Wallis."

"I know you a letter dated May 21, 1926. Do you recognize it?" asked Attorney Austin. A.—Yes, it was written in answer to one I wrote Mr. Fairbanks.

LETTERS READ IN COURT.

Q.—You are familiar with the handwriting? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you ever see the sheriff write? A.—No.

Q.—Do you exchange letters with him? A.—Yes.

One letter said to have been written by the sheriff to the witness read:

"Dear Friend—Your letter arrived and I was glad to hear from you. I am also glad that you like the people you are with and the job. I know a girl who will soon be twenty-one, and who could be the best help to me. She always has been. I will talk further about that business school when I see you."

Today the throng in the courtroom was moved, as this whole section is keenly interested in the charges against the sheriff, to which the bloodless girl has confessed.

So intense is the interest that Judge Graham has ruled that the jury must be locked up during the trial, no newspapers are given the surprom and they are not allowed even to pass near groups of people in the courtroom or corridors.

RESUMES STORY.

Spectators are not permitted to leave their seats in the courtroom until after the jury has filed out. They are being kept absolutely free from any contact with any of the spectators, and also from other members of the police who are not sitting on the Fairbanks case.

Miss Stoodley pleaded guilty to the charge of being friendly with the sheriff when she appeared before the court some time ago and in the local jail to be a witness but has not yet been sentenced. Held the State.

3 Judges at Trial of Sheriff; Men and Women Segregated

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 26.—Odd features are the rule in the trial of Sheriff Fairbanks.

There are three judges, two of whom can over-rule the presiding justice.

The jury is locked up at night and denied newspapers or conversation with outsiders.

A special assistant has been retained by the State of Vermont to aid the State's Attorney.

Men and women spectators are carefully segregated in the courtroom.

Newspaper photographers are denied the privilege of taking pictures, either in the court house or the grounds outside.

Q.—Did he park his car in the road? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was it a traveled road? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he park at the side of the road? A.—No; in the middle.

Q.—What time was this. A.—About 6 o'clock in the evening. It was dark.

Q.—Did you write the Sheriff on May 12? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you write? There was objection here and Prosecutor Austin said he introduced the question simply to save the way to a reply letter written by the sheriff. The girl was allowed to answer after she had told the judge that the letter had come through the regular mail.

GIVEN PRESENT OF $13.

A.—I said in the letter that I had arrived in Waterbury O. .. and told him what time I had arrived. I said it was a nice job and the Ridgleys were nice people.

Judge in Sheriff's Case Embarrassed by Hotel Girl

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 26.—A pretty waitress at the Hotel Pavilion here was responsible for an embarrassing situation in the dining-room today.

Sheriff Wallis L. Fairbanks, on trial for familiarity with a State ward, was placed at a table for breakfast. Then entered Judge Warren R. Graham and the girl led him to the table where Fairbanks was eating.

She was puzzled when the embarrassed judge asked for another table. But just the same she led State's Attorney Charles Adams direct to the Fairbanks table when he entered the dining-room.

Another exchange of embarrassed grins and Adams, too, was conducted to another table.

DIES TRYING TO SAVE STEAMER

Rockland, Me., Oct. 26 (A.P.)—Captain Charles L. Philbrook, fifty-nine, lost his life indirectly as a result of a fire on Commercial wharf today which caused a loss of $30,000 and put out of commission three of the largest wholesale lobster concerns in the country. A fireman was blown through an upper window by a hot air explosion.

Captain Philbrook, in trying to remove the steamer southport, of which he was master, from a neighboring wharf, fell between the wharf and the steamer, striking his head on a guard rail. He died several hours later without recovering consciousness.

The fire started around a chimney on the Penobscot Fish Company's building. The wharf also served as headquarters for coast patrol boats of Base 16, all of which had to put to sea during the fire.

DEAN INGE'S ATTACK UPHELD

London, Oct. 26 (I.N.S.)—Labor ites today failed to have the House of Commons take action against Dean of St. Paul's.

Neil MacLean, Labor M. P., requested the speaker to commit Dean Inge for breach of privilege, for alleging in his book, "England Awake," that "the new type of labor member is sometimes a drunken blackguard."

The speaker ruled that the question of privilege could not be raised.

NEW COMEDY AT PLYMOUTH SPARKLING

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

It is a fair presumption that a comedy carrying so timely a title as "The Butter and Egg Man" would lay its own firm hand upon the humor of an audience.

When turned out by that most gifted of ...ervers in the smart circles of the theatre, George S. Kaufman, the prospect, even modestly considered, is alluring. As comedies of wise cracks and wiser characters come and go "The Butter and Egg Man," as imparted to view at the Plymouth last evening, more than held its own with similar wares recently broadcast upon the theatre.

While it is by no means certain that Mr. Kaufman's play of the boob from Chillicothe, Ohio, and the nimble witted workers among the white lights of Broadway would attract more than scant attention from the professors who pick the season's best drama, it did pack away a cart load of laughs—honest, sincere laughs. Comedies—even so labelled—do not always get that far into the confidence of an audience.

The angel in the theatre is no strange character; not as developed by Gregory Kelly and his own quaint style of acting in this Kaufman play ... nor is the belief of heroic dimensions. In any event he demanded and won his title of sympathy, although he was a good deal of a simpleton during most of the proceedings.

Mr. Kelly reflected boyish credulity to the widest degree, but you always felt sure that the lad would not desert him in the final accounting—and he didn't. For theatrical purposes he finally trimmed his trimmers, more than doubled his meagre investment in the "farce" and topped off the evening by asking the pretty secretary of the doubtful Lemse Productions, Inc., to go back to Chillicothe and help run a country hotel.

During all this time you were treated to the smartest quips in our American language. Robert Middlemass, popularly supposed to be caricaturing an illustrious producer of the day, under incessant fly with hours of hard-boiled chatter right off the Rialto.

TROPIC DRAMA AT GAYETY

Spiced with a variety of trimmings which have always the humorous theme of love in the tropics, "Red Kisses" at the Gayety theatre, proves quite an entertaining in its moments of soft melody and swaying girls, as in the tenser moments of passion run amuck. The boldness in the treatment of life in a Brazilian sink hole of iniquity, is softened ever and anon, by a rippling persistent humor, that always saves the plot from becoming too serious.

"Red Kisses" takes its name from the "Red Kiss Girls" on pictures of ...rides who come to Godforsaken ...ottorgasso, a haven of fugitives from justice, who revel in the lawlessness of their exile.

Eileen Douglas gives a pleasing interpretation of Mary Lee and Donald Clarke is well cast in the role of the hero parson.

A struggle between Douglas and the girl in his cabin furnishes a first ... and thrilling climax, put over with breath-taking reality. The lighter moments are furnished by Percy Kilbride who puts a bright comedy into the role of the sodden ... fose, who knows women, and by Cecil Spooner, who as Mamie Smith, the picture bride from Frisco, puts a laugh in every line.

A bevy of "California Morons girls" and Olga Sabie as Laona furnish a plenty of dancing entertainment

'BLACK PIRATE' AT ORPHEUM

With the combination of Douglas Fairbanks in the latest picture "The Black Pirate," and a diverting vaudeville bill, patrons of Loew's Orpheum are offered some unusually bright entertainments.

The entire exhibition of "The Black Pirate" is done in natural colors. But aside from its coloring, the work of Fairbanks is enough to keep any audience keyed up during the presentation. There are thrills galore. His capture of an entire pirate band single-handed, abounds in duels and fist fights that are highly realistic. Aided by the gorgeous Billie Dove and a superb cast, Mr. Fairbanks has given his followers another great treat.

NEWS FILM OF QUEEN SHOWN

A complete record of the activities of Queen Marie of Rumania is being made by International News reel. Wherever the Queen goes she is accompanied by an International Newsreel cameraman, who record not only her acts activities, but those of the beautiful Princess Ileana, who has been receiving almost as much attention from the American public as her illustrious mother.

The current issue of International Newsreel, Number 86, now showing at the leading theatres, contains its thrilling motion pictures the remarkable welcome given to the Queen in Washington, Annapolis, Baltimore, and upon her return to New York. The pictures also show the Queen placing a wreath upon the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Washington and of her review of the cadets at Annapolis.

Cecil De Mille Signs William K. Howard

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The film salesman who has all the kicks in the business and none of the glory please listen to this story: William K. Howard, the director, was selling celluloid entertainment when one day he decided to go West.

Howard was given a job with Famous Players-Lasky and gave such a good account of himself that Cecil De Mille invegled him into joining Producers Distributors. That was a year ago. Then Howard made "Kiki" and the film salesman knows what the public wants.

Lois Moran

He has now signed a long term contract, and to use Mr. De Mille's own words, will be given the most important pictures of this company.

Mr. Howard's first under the new agreement will be "The Dog," adapted for the screen by Albert Payson Terhune Rod Larocque is mentioned as the star.

ANYTIME SAMUEL GOLDWYN feels in a discovering mood, I know at least a hundred ambitious players who would like to apply for the job. This Christopher Columbus of movies singled out Pe'e Bennett and Lois Moran for important roles in "Stella Dallas," and now they are in a position to pick and choose their own film characters. Miss Bennett has recently signed with Joseph Kennedy, the banker, head of F. B. O., for the featured role in "Mother."

THERE WAS NEVER ANY DOUBT in my mind that Dolores Del Rio would get the lead in Resurrection," Tolstoy's famous novel. I believe when Edwin Carewe first confided in me that he intended to screen this emotional drama I mentioned Miss Del Rio.

It was Edwin Carewe who brought the beautiful Spanish actress and her husband to Hollywood and who put her under contract. He and Mrs. Carewe saw her in Mexico City and were convinced of her screen possibilities.

CARL LAEMMLE, THE SECOND OR JUNIOR, as he is called by his family, telephoned to me Saturday to say three prints of "The Collegiate" are in the family vault in New York. I promised the young man I would take a look at these pictures, which are entirely his own idea. He even wrote the scenarios.

That pleasure, I fear, will have to be delayed, for Junior, accompanied by his father, Carl Laemmle, and his sister, Rosabelle, have departed for California.

IN THE COURSE OF A GENERAL CONVERSATION, Jesse L. Lasky mentioned his interest in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" and his desire to find the right actress for this fascinating role. Adolphe Menjou, I believe, has been definitely chosen for the delightful part.

Why not Ina Claire for the part on the screen that she created on the stage? As I remember, she looks very well in the films.

TO THOSE OF US WHO TALKED WITH LAWYERS, clients, etcetera, at the time the Valentino will was offered for probate in California, it seemed inevitable that a legal battle would result.

Alberto Guglielmi, who is representing his own and his sister Maria's interests in the late brother's estate, was apparently persuaded into believing that George Ullman should not be the executor of the will. Ullman, who was Valentino's best friend and advisor, is the one man who knows what comprises the estate. Without him, I should think it would be somewhat difficult for Chicago's puzzle to unravel the intricacy of the Valentino holdings, which lie in so many directions. Mrs. Teresa Werner, the aunt of Natasha Rambova, on the other hand has declared her absolute faith in Ullman.

Mrs. Werner kept house for Rudy in Falcon Lair after Natasha departed, and the will, which bears the date of September, was made at a time when Rudy and Natasha were at swords' points. The Werner inheritance, then, can scarcely be said to be meant for Natasha Rambova.

I rememb... Natasha was annoyed at her aunt for remaining with Valentino after the separation.

I WAS ONCE TOLD BY A WELL MEANING FAN that the public at large is not interested in contracts. She assured me that it is of far more interest to read what Marion Davies wears for tea or the color of Norma Talmadge's favorite evening gown than to go into the details of this or that contract.

All of which reminds me that Alice Joyce has finished her contract with Famous Players-Lasky and is about to embark upon an independent career. Alice has certainly had a second blooming, or whatever one calls her improved looks and technique on the screen.

THE MORNING MAIL TODAY AND YESTERDAY gave me ample proof that I have some readers among the cameramen. My article on camera angles brought forth some interesting letters from them.

Several of them were gracious, with a bow of thanks and an appreciative nod for this recognition. Other letters discussed camera angles, which now seem to be the chief topic of conversation wherever motion pictures are mentioned.

Quick Quizzes on the Movies

By BARBARA BENTON

E. R. G., MALDEN—The "wide open faces" in "The Campus Flirt" were made by Ed Brendel, a new-found comedian in the films. He is from the vaudeville team of Brendel and Bert —Flo Bert is his wife. You are right. He is a very funny fellow and may prove to be another Harry Langdon.

V. F. C., BOSTON—Clara Bow's first starring picture is Elinor Glyn's "It," in which the author herself will also appear. Antonio Moreno is the leading man.

S. H. D., CAMBRIDGE—This stout lady you have in mind is Trixie Friganza, formerly of vaudeville, but now a picture comedian. She has appeared in about a dozen movies altogether—all comedy roles. Her next appearance is in support of Raymond Griffith in "The Waiter from the Ritz." James Cruze is directing.

F. T. C., BROOKLINE—The "vamp" in "Variety" was Lya De Putti. She is now making some pictures for First National and will be seen in the forthcoming "The Prince of Tempters" with Ben Lyon, Lois Moran and Mary Brian. She has just completed her part in D. W. Griffith's "The Sorrows of Satan." More wicked ness!

B. J. M., STOUGHTON—Address your letter to Richard Barthelmess in care of First National Burbank, Calif., but don't expect a reply by return mail, because your favorite has gone to France on what his press agent is pleased to term "Dick's first vacation in five years." But cheerup, it may be true! His last day's work was with Patsy Ruth Miller in "The White Black Sheep."

Week's Features

SCOLLAY SQUARE—Adolph Menjou in "The Ace of Cads," with Alice Joyce. Vaudeville.

WALDRON'S—Burlesquer Jimmie Cooper and his "Black and White Revue" with Betty Dal Monte and Octavia Summer. Pictures and vaudeville.

OWDOI, SQUARE—Tom Mix in "The Great K. and A. Train Robbery." Also a bill of vaudeville headed by Al Moore and his "Jolly Tars" band.

(WARD—(Burlesque) "Round the Town" revue with Fred Binder, Gladys Clark and the Smith Sisters. Pictures and vaudeville.

YOUNG STARS SCORE IN BILL AT HOLLIS

Of all the homespun heroes who set out to conquer the world in the Big Town some few have the notable figures of the Alger series to inspire them. Others are plain flesh and blood mortals who simply do the best they can with nature's endowments.

The latter class is so much more familiar—and real—that Marc Connelly has made a selection, labelled him Charlie Bemis and allowed you to meet him and sympathize with him on his own ground, in "The Wisdom Tooth," which opened last night at the Hollis.

And he is known with all haste that Mr. Connelly and Mr. Alger could never "hitch horses." Where the Fates and Luck boys were monotonously correct Charlie blushed, stammered and blundered into the mistakes of youth—and you always forgave him because you recognized him as a fellow human just plus a shade in the tight crevice of a work-a-day world.

Not that Fraud Charles did not have his moments. No, sir-ee! He just would call up that boss of his on the telephone, late in the evening to know why "that blonde" was fired. And of course he just had to tell himself for the impudence, but that was something of life and not fiction—more of Mr. Connelly and less of Mr. Alger.

As in his previous "Beggar On Horseback" it was a bewildered and beset hero you were asked to consider. He was constantly before you in the person of Norma Mitchell, a young actor of surprising ease and naturalness. Anne Brewer, the ingenue, and the rest of the long cast were almost equally effective and rendered "The Wisdom Tooth" one of the most pleasant experiences in a whole season of theatre going.

BETTY BLYTHE OPENS AT KEITH'S THEATRE

Betty Blythe "came out" last night. Her appearance at B. F. Keith's, billed as the famous motion picture queen's debut in American vaudeville, was a tremendous success

This charming young lady, usually cast in "heavy" roles in the films, proved very cleverly that her talents are not so confined. A number of character impersonations and several songs, given in smart fashion were enthusiastically received by a capacity house.

Miss Blythe and Harriet Hutchins of musical comedy fame, presented a lunchable skit. Miss Hutchins is delightful in her assumed "primness," and her partner is a comedian of no mean ability. This pair took the audience by storm.

Elna and John Torrence, assisted by Kenneth Colby and the Ivory Keys" and Rae Quipes are clever on roller skates, and the "Flying Hartvelle" have a good act. Irving Edwards in "Just Young and Careless" has several good musical numbers.

The regular feature and news pictures complete the bill.

EMBARRASSING MOMENT

Showing what happens when absent-minded Scotsmen venture out without kilts. Douglas MacLean and Constance Howard in "Hold That Lion" at the New Boston.

SMART COMEDY AT CASTLE

The Castle Square Players' reputation for good, snappy comedy was upheld last night in the performance of "The Girl from Childs." From Jean Oliver as the slangy, appealing little waitress to Victoria Montgomery as the eastern society matron, the company sustained the light comedy spirit, and kept laughter in the air.

The plot of the play is simple, but well developed. The acquaintance of a wealthy father in a spiteful mood marries the little "Girl from Childs," deserting her immediately after the ceremony, to humiliate his family.

Only Jack Marvin, as Henry Wood, the handsome, tolerant son, shows her sympathy, and in the end when the "dope" is found not to be a lord, the marriage not a real marriage, the little waitress has changed from a shingy waif to a lady who rules Henry's heart.

IBSEN DRAMA AT REPERTORY

"The Lady from the Sea," by Henrik Ibsen, at the Repertory Theatre proved a searching, haunting, powerful drama. Although it is given for the first time in Boston, the "Lady From the Sea" was one of Eleonora Duse's most famous roles.

Miss Ruth Taylor as the sea-woman Ellida stands for the very incarnation of Ibsen. Here is difficult and mystifying role. The play is of a girl, who goes through a symbolic wedding ceremony with a sailor, a total stranger to her. He returns to the sea and she becomes the lawful wife of another. Yet her soul is constantly crying out for reunion with her lover and the sea.

During one of her countless longings the Stranger returns. He tells her she must make her choice forever, return to the sea with him or marriage, the little mistress has accepts shore life to the one she had been constantly crying out for.

CUSTER'S LAST FIGHT IN FILM AT STATE

The golden, gun-toting West—now but a memory of the oldest inhabitants—lives again on the screen at Loew's State.

And up from the dust of the Dakotas the shadowy figures of General Custer, Reno, Sitting Bull and many other originals and aboriginals of the time, are brought to life again to furnish the ferocity and fun, tears and tragedy of "The Flaming Frontier"—latest lesson in American history via the movies.

Once back with the cactus cut ups, diahonor's doleful victim snaps into it. Joins the Custer forces where sons are won as well as equestrians, and from them on you have a "Flaming Frontier" that certainly does flame. And no mistake about it.

The heroic "last stand" of Custer (Dustin Farnum) and the events leading up to it are thrillingly pictured. Here the "long shots" that fixed the fame for D W. Griffith are brilliantly executed. Vast hordes of frenzied Indians swarm the prairie and their numbers are magnified many times

ENGINEERS INSTALLING VITAPHONE MECHANISM

Engineers employed by Western Electric Company and Bell Telephone laboratories have arrived in Boston and are devoting intensive efforts to the installation of the Vitaphone mechanism at the Colonial Theatre.

The theatre will be dark until Friday night, when the Boston premiere of Vitaphone occurs, in conjunction with the Warner Brothers production, John Barrymore in "Don Juan."

HOOPER HOOPER BACKS GASTON AND WALSH

By THOMAS F. PHELAN

Another prominent Republican today bolted the party to pledge support to David I. Walsh and William A. Gaston, when Samuel Hooper Hooper, widely known Back Bay society leader, in a letter to Colonel Gaston promised his vote to the two major Democratic candidates.

Mr. Hooper Hooper, a life long Republican, accuses the G. O. P. of "taking back water" and announced that he will vote for Walsh and Gaston "with much pleasure."

The letter reads:

"My dear Mr. Gaston: I have no political axe to grind, but as a life long Republican I want to tell you that I am voting for you and Walsh this year with much pleasure and if you care to use my name as endorsing your party you are welcome to do so.

"My uncle (for whom I am named) represented this district for many years in Congress, but the G. O. P. has certainly been taking back water since his day.

"Please do not bother to answer this, as I am only writing as a little encouragement.

"Yours sincerely,
(Signed)
"SAMUEL HOOPER HOOPER.
"935 Boylston street."

Attorney James H. Vahey, erstwhile Democratic nominee for Governor, today criticised President Coolidge for lending his name to the candidacy of Senator Butler and Governor Fuller.

"President Coolidge's aid is involved by Governor Fuller," said Vahey. "The Governor said when he (Fuller) was a candidate for Representative in the Legislature and for Congress that the regular Republican organization was a band of outlaws.

"Now when he wants and very much needs the votes of all regular Republicans, they are the salt of the earth."

Candidate Gaston has accepted an invitation to address rallies of Republican Jewish voters, one in America Hall Olifield street, Roxbury, and another in the hall of the Jewish school at No. 1066 Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester.

REED ASSAILS COOLIDGE

cedent of letting "other Republican candidates who were in trouble take the consequences."

"I am willing to bet my hat that if Senator Butler is re-elected," Reed said, "he will vote to seat Vare from Pennsylvania and Smith from Illinois if they receive majorities, without regard to any evidence that has been or may be produced touching upon fraud or corruption in those States."

The President had pictured Butler, Reed added, as a giant in the Senate, but the Massachusetts Senator was "really most celebrated as the man who induced Mr. Coolidge to return for the second time, after he was once rejected, the nomination of Charles Gleber Warren of Michigan as Attorney-General."

Reed Has Hit the G. O. P. Hard Blow, Says Oldfield

Washington, Oct. 26 (A. P.)—Governmental economy under Republican rule and slush fund campaign charges were made the basis for statements today by leaders of both the Republican and Democratic campaign committees.

Senator Phipps, of Colorado, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Committee, asserted that the record was plain that government economy had made tremendous strides under Republican administration.

Representative Oldfield, of Arkansas, chief of the Democratic Congressional Committee, said the Democratic cause had been greatly strengthened by "the splendid work of the committee headed by Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, not only in exposing these huge slush funds in primaries, but by putting the fear of further exposure into the hearts of Republican contributors to campaign funds as well as candidates, so that the Republican practice of buying elections is minimized this year."

FINDS FATHER AFTER 15 YEARS

REUNION OF MRS. BALLOU AND FATHER

When Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Ballou, of No. 11 Columbia Terrace, Cambridge, took their children, Walter, 7, and Ella, 5, aboard the City of Calcutta to see the wild animals, Mrs. Ballou came face to face with her father, Alexander Sweeney, who she believed was killed in the war. Years she wrote to her father for permission to marry Ballou. He never received them. After the war he went back to the city of Calcutta as ship's carpenter, as he had when Mrs. Ballou was a girl, and it was her desire to see the old ship that carried her to make the trip.

FLY FLAGS FOR COOLIDGE ON ELECTION DAY

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY.

A clamor of bells and fluttering flags in every city and town of the State will mark the home coming of President and Mrs. Coolidge on election day to cast their ballots in Northampton, according to plans announced today by Republicans.

November 2 is to be made a "red letter" day throughout the State if the Republican leaders of Massachusetts can make it so.

In a letter addressed to women chairmen of Republican committees in 316 towns and thirty-eight cities Mrs. James D. Tillinghast, executive chairman of the Republican State committee, urged them to arrange with the proper authorities for a "red letter" day demonstration.

She asks them to have bells rung and flags flown to stimulate the coming of the President to Massachusetts.

PEOPLE WAKING UP.

"If the President and Mrs. Coolidge," the letter reads "consider the election of such importance as to journey from Washington to personally cast their ballots, surely the people at home should allow nothing to prevent them from following their example."

Benefits of President Coolidge's letter announcing that he would come home to vote were described as "wonderful" by Francis Prescott, chairman of the State committee.

"The letter is good for thousands of votes," he said. "It has done much to dispell the apathy that marked the campaign up to the first of the week."

LODGE TAKEN SICK.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., head of the Republican Associates, made up of young men in the party, was forced to quit the campaign temporarily today because of illness. He canceled his speaking engagement at the noon rally in Court street, after being sent to his home in Beverly by his physician.

Prepared "to meet the lion in his den," Senator William M. Butler, Massachusetts standard bearer for the Republican party, tonight invades Lowell and Lawrence, where the Republican cry of "prosperity" is reported to have aroused the ire of thousands of mill employes.

He will be accompanied by Governor Fuller and Lt. Gov. Allen.

Senator Butler will also continue his verbal onslaughts in the mill centres against "radicals," who are attempting, he asserts to poison the minds of laboring men and women against the Coolidge administration and his own candidacy.

A mill owner himself Senator Butler's invasions tonight will be watched with keen interest. His program will be similar to that of last night, when he delivered speeches at rallies in Worcester and surrounding municipalities.

The Worcester rally drew a crowd of 1,000 to Mechanics Hall.

COOLIDGE PART IN FIGHT IS ENDED

Washington, Oct. 26.—President Coolidge has gone as far as he intends to go in the Massachusetts political campaign. His endorsement in a personal letter of Senator William M. Butler and Governor Alvan T. Fuller, is the only part he will play. Other candidates will have to fight their own battles.

The President will leave here Wednesday by special train, arriving in Northampton early Tuesday and after casting his ballot will immediately start back to this city, according to present plans. No special plans for his reception are being made in Northampton.

Hold Gun Suspect

Armed with a revolver and 25 rounds of ammunition, according to the police, Vincent Agrittine, 24 years old, said to have escaped from the Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Allentown, Pa., was arrested in Merrimack square, East Boston today. In court his case was continued until Friday.

PYTHON AND ITS EGG

Most of the 2,000 animals landed by the City of Calcutta were collected by the Smithsonian-Chrysler expedition in East Africa and Zanzibar. They were sent to Washington.

NEW DRIVE FOR OLD IRONSIDES

With a background of wealthy bankers and men high in government circles, a new and vigorous campaign will be launched within a week or ten days to complete the fund for the preservation of the frigate Constitution.

The old campaign had lost much of its enthusiasm, lagging at times and the new drive was decided upon. The methods to be used are said to be unique, and for that reason are kept secret until the drive actually opens. Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, commandant of the Navy Yard, is general director of the movement.

The fund to "save old Ironsides" has reached $257,427.32. Lieutenant C. A. Brinkman of the United States Navy announced today. Latest receipts include contributions from the Adirondack-Florida School at Onchiota, N. Y., and the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

C. T. A. LEADER DIES AT 74

Following a long illness, Maurice Dineen, president of the Catholic Total Abstinence Society of the Boston archdiocese for 28 years died at his home, No. 295 Highland avenue, Somerville.

Born in Bellenhassit, Ireland, 74 years ago, he came to this country as a boy and lived during the early part of his life in the North End. In 1880 he moved to Malden and was elected a member of the Malden Common Council, serving two terms, and later advanced to the office of alderman.

He was one of the founders of the Abstinence Society.

Mr. Dineen is survived by a wife and six children. Funeral services will be held Thursday morning, with a solemn mass of requiem, at St. Catherine's Church, Somerville.

3 QUAKES FELT IN ALL PARTS OF WORLD

Three earthquakes, described as "extremely severe," were recorded on seismographs throughout the United States, in Canada, England and Japan early today. Although believed to be more than 1,000 miles from Boston observers in Eastern United States colleges said the tremors were distinctly recorded.

The first disturbance began at 11 o'clock last night. It was followed by a second quake about an hour later. The third came shortly before 4:30 a. m. and was not as distinctly recorded as were the first two.

At Allhouse University, in Hallifax, it was estimated that the earthquakes were 4,200 miles away. At Washington the distance was estimated at 3,700 miles by Georgetown University. The Regis College seismograph, in New York, gave the distance as between 5,000 and 6,000 miles. In Japan it was estimated that the full force of the quake was felt in the South Seas.

London, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—A somewhat prolonged but slight earth tremor was felt on the Isle of Jersey in the English Channel today. The tremor was particularly noticeable in the eastern part of the island. No damage was reported.

Armenia Digs Out of Earthquake Ruins

Leninakan, Armenia, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Heartened by the immediate assistance from America and every part of Russia, Armenia is struggling valiantly to extricate herself from the misery, famine and desolation caused by the recent earthquakes.

Fifteen villages are in ruins and twenty-three others partly destroyed. The death total is placed at 600, with 1,000 others missing.

The survivors are encamped on the bleak hillsides, unsheltered, lacking bedding and some without necessary clothing. There is also and acute food shortage, as much of the livestock was destroyed and all flour mills razed.

In this city 600 houses were levelled. The orphanages of the Near East Relief were considerably damaged and some of the buildings housing the American personnel are beyond repair.

Through all the terror of the quake American women furnished an example of supreme heroism. Four nurses worked all night aiding the wounded while the ground rocked under their feet.

MOVE TO TRACE GUN THAT WOUNDED MUSSOLINI

Rome, Oct. 25 (A.P.).—It Tevere says the Attorney General has demanded a jury trial of the Hon Violet Alina Gibson to investigate her repeated assertion that the revolver with which she wounded Premier Mussolini last April was given her by a former Fascist Cabinet minister, now an opposition deputy.

Miss Gibson, a British subject and sister of Lord Ashborne, shot Mussolini on April 7 as he was emerging from the Capitol, in Rome, after opening the international congress of surgeons. The Fascist leader escaped with a slight wound near the tip of his nose.

MAY ASTOR'S ENGAGEMENT BREAK DUE TO SEPARATION

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Mary Astor, film star, today announced her engagement to Irvin Asher, studio executive and best broken engagement has failed to withstand the test of her long absence while on "location" in Texas.

The engagement was announced last July and the marriage was to have taken place this coming Christmas.

Inquest on Death

Center Ossipee, N. H., Oct. 26.—An inquest sat on the death of Earl Gray Stiles of New York, who died at the home of his uncle, Walter Cole, from the effects, it is alleged, of a powerful drug.

1,000 KILLED IN CUBA, SAYS FR. DONOVAN

New York, Oct. 26 (A.P.)—Fearing an epidemic outbreak and establishment of a quarantine in Havana following the hurricane that swept that area last week, virtually all of the 168 passengers who went there aboard the Ward liner Orizaba returned on the same ship today.

The Rev. William Donovan of Lawrence, Mass., one of the passengers returning, estimated that at least 1,000 persons lost their lives in the hurricane. Most of the victims, he said, were men aboard schooners which went down in Havana Harbor.

These sailors, he said, were "drowned like rats in a trap."

With no water for sewage purposes and the drinking supply being taken from wells, he said there was serious danger of a plague unless water mains were soon repaired.

He added that a child, being carried in the arms of its mother, who ventured along the waterfront during the hurricane, was swept from the mother's arms and drowned. A short time later the mother was catapulted into the water by the wind and drowned.

FIND POWERFUL BOMB AT N. Y. COURTHOUSE

New York, Oct. 26 (A. P.)—A bomb which, experts declared, contained enough dynamite to blow up a big section of lower New York was found today on a window ledge of the first floor of the New York County Courthouse.

The bomb was in a small paper valise and was found by a man who was about to enter the courthouse.

The valise was taken inside and two clerks tried to open it. As they did so they heard a clicking sound that roused their suspicions.

The bureau of combustibles of the Fire Department was notified and three experts opened the valise. They grasped when they saw the contents—a mechanism similar to that used in time bombs and a large quantity of dynamite.

The experts described the queer package as an "infernal machine." The case measured fourteen inches long, eight inches wide and four inches deep.

Inside was a wooden box with dynamite in sawdust form. Along side of the explosive was a small tin box. This the firemen declared probably contained the mechanism that was intended to cause the dynamite to explode. They did not investigate the small can, fearing it might cause an explosion.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Society Eagerly Awaiting United Hunts Meet At Belmont Park, Nov. 2

WITH NOVEMBER ALMOST upon the calendar, eyes of horsemen everywhere turn to November 2 and its large interest, the Meet of the United Hunts Racing Association at Belmont Park Terminal out on Long Island. Society and King Horse share place alike as prime factors in this spectacle.

EQUALLY IMPORTANT from a horsey standpoint and equally smart from the society angle, comes the November 6 meeting when the Meadowbrook Steeplechase Association and the United Hunts Clubs join forces at Meadowbrook. Then the oldest steeplechase trophy in the country, the Meadowbrook Hunt Cup, will be ridden for.

OVER A THREE-AND-A-HALF-MILE course for four-year-olds, it's a sporting proposition such as brings out the mettle of both horse and rider. Tuesday's special feature is the running of the Temple Twaithney Memorial Steeplechase, likewise an event demanding the best.

BOSTON NAMES linked with these smart sporting events include Reginald W. Bird and John R. Macomber, both men owning some splendid mounts. Both are down for boxes at the race meet and both will have horses entered.

LUNCHEON at the famous old Turf and Field Club is a feature of such meets, large and representative reservations that promising a brilliantly animated scene.

MRS. ALBERT R. WHITTIER'S party for debutantes makes its annual appearance on the bud calendar with resultant joy to that much entertained for coterie. This season her party takes form as a luncheon and has Miss Evelyn Royce, daughter of the Frederick Page Royces, for its central figure.

THE WHITTIER-ROYCE luncheon dovetails very nicely into the November 17 program which, as already written down, foretells a tea for Miss Katherine Amory, given by Mrs. Copley Amory of Washington and Boston, and Benjamin W. Crowninshield's dance for Miss Emily Davis.

EVERY SEASON Mrs. Whittier may be counted upon to do something extremely pleasant for the buds. In her handsome home in lower Commonwealth avenue, at No. 16, admirably arranged as it is for large functions, affairs of the jolliest take place.

BEAU BRUMMELL Thomas Fowers has taken his departure from Newport and is away to other social fields to conquer. Following his established round, Virginia Hot Springs now claims his presence. The Powers' wardrobe and the Powers' person find domicile in a luxurious suite at the Homestead.

WHEN THE SEASON shall have waned at Hot Springs, then will Mr. Powers, continuing his social cycle, journey down to Washington, New York in mid Winter and Continental seas in the early Spring prolong this fashionable pilgrimage, until Newport looms on the horizon for the Summer.

FASHION SHOW TO AID SALLIES

With the campaign only twenty-four hours old, the Salvation Army in Greater Boston is almost a fifth of its way to its goal of $142,500 in its annual general maintenance appeal.

The latest addition to the shock troops enlisted under the "Sallies" banner in the Boston appeal is a group of Boston society girls. With the assistance of Miss Betty Blythe, stage and screen star, these girls will stage a style and fashion show at Keith's Theatre, Friday morning at 11.

The proceeds of the style show will be turned over to Allen Forbes, president of the State Street Trust Company and treasurer of the Salvation Army in Greater Boston. The show will be for ladies only.

Campaign headquarters have been opened at No. 185 Devonshire street.

BOSTON DANCER GETS NEW YORK ENGAGEMENT

Naomi Andrews, 17, of St. Botolph street, Boston, who participated in many entertainments given by the Boston Evening American for disabled veterans during the past season, has joined "Naughty Riquette" at the Cosmopolitan Theatre, New York.

It is her first professional engagement as a dancer, and her Boston friends, who have seen her in the New York musical comedy, say she is making many friends.

In addition to helping make former service men happy at Boston Evening American shows, she also helped in this newspaper's entertainments in behalf of the fund to rebuild "Old Ironsides."

SUMMER HIKES MAKE RACE OF "GIRL TRAMPS"

Cleveland, Oct. 26, A. P.—A carefree race to roving amazons who have left offices and school rooms for the "call of the open road" has appeared in America, according to Miss Sabina Marshall, head of the Cleveland Women's Protective Association.

Hundreds of girls who start on hiking tours in the summer prefer to "stay on the road" when their vacations end, she said. Selling magazine is a favorite means of securing a livelihood with these "tramps."

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Derry Thomas, an attractive business girl, while shopping, permits Tony Landor, a young man whose name she has overheard but whom she does not know, pay for a dress fabric she cannot afford. He leaves her without learning her name. Mr. Ostrander, her employer, has her promise not to marry for three years. Derry goes autoing with Beverly Greenway.

CHAPTER IV.

An unsuppressed eagerness suggested that his docility might be more purposeful than genuine. Derry idly wondered why his powerful and active physique did not make him seem more dangerous. Big blackish men, she reflected, always seemed formidable; but Beverly Greenway had preserved something of the innocuousness of boyhood in look and bearing if not invariably in behavior.

As a matter of fact, Derry didn't much care. A spirit of truancy had entered into her with the breath of the vagrant, warm wind. But she insisted on conceding something to duty.

"Could you run me out to a place along the North Shore? There's something there I want to see."

"Sure!"

"All right. I'm your little playmate. Give me ten minutes to varnish the old countenance."

"I can use those ten minutes myself."

When she came down to join him, his employment of the time was in evidence in the form of a bunch of violets and gardenias big enough to give a touch of luxury, but not so large as to be over-conspicuous.

"This isn't fair. You're trying to spoil the honest working girl."

Said he, protestingly: "I don't know why you should be an honest working girl—I mean, a working girl at all. You certainly weren't intended to be. And you ought to be something else now."

Without any indication of resentment she answered: "Are you going on to suggest this early in the game that a life of ease and luxury awaits me, if and so forth? What do you think you are—a movie director?"

He was annoyed, as she had intended he should be. One of the reasons that she found Beverly Greenway amusing was that she could always get his goat—though he suspected that he might turn the tables on her some day. "I'm not suggesting anything," he retorted angrily. "I know you're not that sort of girl."

"How do you know?"

"A fellow can tell."

"If I'm not 'that kind of girl what kind of girl do you think I am, Mr. Greenway?"

"Best if I know. You've got me stymied."

"By the way, I'm not a stenographer any more. Had a boost. I'm to be a sort of minor partner if I behave myself and don't get married."

His face fell. "Are you thinking of getting married?"

"Last thing in the world I'm thinking of," she laughed.

"Good business! Old Ostermoor has loosened up, has he?"

"That's what I'm celebrating to-

HERE'S HOW TO FIGURE 'EARNED INCOME' CREDIT

Washington, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Instructions on the computation of the 25 per cent. credit for earned income allowed taxpayers under the new revenue law were issued today by the Treasury Department.

It is explained that the limit on which this credit may be applied is $20,000 earned net income. The credit can be taken on 25 per cent. of the normal tax and 25 per cent. of the surtax up to that amount.

All incomes of $5,000 and under are declared "earned" for the purposes of credit.

Earned income, the Treasury holds, "may consist of salaries, wages, commissions, professional fees and other amounts received for personal services actually rendered or an amount not in excess of 20 per cent. of the net profits derived from a trade or business in which both personal services and capital are material income producing factors.

"If the business requires only a nominal capital and the income is derived principally from the personal services of the taxpayer, as a doctor or a lawyer, the entire profits not exceeding $20,000 may be considered as earned income. Where the income of the taxpayer is derived from capital invested in a business in which no personal service is rendered, as in the case of an individual who derives his income from rents and royalties or agent to manage his property and collect the rents, the earned income to such case shall not exceed $20,000."

SEA HEROES GO DOWN AS SHIP SINKS IN GALE

Hamilton, Bermuda, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Tales of heroism are related by the twelve survivors of the crew of 35 of the British freight steamer Eastway which was lost off Bermuda in Friday's hurricane.

The radio operator, R. James, stuck to his post, sounding his wireless call of distress and went down with his ship.

Likewise the engineers and firemen refused to make an attempt to enter the single remaining lifboat and went to the bottom with the craft.

The twelve survivors, who were picked up by the British schooner Lucilina, have been brought to St. Georges by that vessel. They say that the storm struck the Eastway early Friday morning.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the master of the Eastway was washed overboard. At 6 o'clock its coal in the bunkers shifted, giving the vessel a heavy list. All but one of the lifeboats were smashed. Into this one boat the twelve rescued men sought safety. The steamer wallowed in the heavy seas until 7 o'clock, when she plunged to the bottom.

The rescued men had been for seventeen hours with no water and but little food when picked up.

They say that ones they were passed at close range by a large steamer which ignored their rockets.

Auto Case Continued

A continuance to November 4 was granted John Whittekund, Jr., of Palmo street, Roslindale, in West Roxbury District Court today on charges of violating the automobile laws, in connection with an accident that resulted in injuries to Motorcycle Officer Henry E. Beatty.

GOLDEN WEDDING GIFTS DEEP POLICE MYSTERY

Somewhere—perhaps in the Hub—Aunt Kate and Uncle John are a bit sad that Ethel Flaherty's greetings have failed to reach them from St. John, N. B.

They are a little sad, too, because nothing has been heard from Margaret Bowes and "the boys."

You see, yesterday was the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Ward, who also are Uncle John and Aunt Kate—but where the couple lives the police were attempting to find out today, at genial and kindhearted Superintendent Crowley's request.

But the greetings from St. John and the best wishes and gold pieces from Margaret Bowes and "the boys" never reached the couple, for the messages were found on the sidewalk of Portland street by Hugh H. Carter of No. 501 Warren Chambers, No. 419 Boylston street.

Carter, an optician, spied the two envelopes near Sudbury street and picked them up. One contained a congratulation card which said:

St. John, N. B.,
October 25, 1926.

Wishing Aunt Kate and Uncle John many more happy returns.

ETHEL FLAHERTY.

The larger envelope had a jewel-case hog inside and the box contained two $2.50 gold pieces, with a card saying:

From Margaret Bowes and "the boys." 1876-1926.

GIRL SEEKING HUSBAND DETAINED AT HOSPITAL

Unable to write or pay train fare, Mrs. Annie Botti, No. 84 Bremen street, East Boston, weeps at home over the news that her daughter, Mrs. Mary Salmi, seventeen, has been detained in the psychopathic ward at Bellevue Hospital, New York. Mrs. Salmi went to New York with $7 to look for her husband, Marino Salmi, who left Boston, saying he was going to enter the movies.

"She be sick because of her husband. She loved him too much. I told her not to go," her mother sobbed.

$235,000,000 IN MAIL ORDER COMBINE

Chicago, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—A new corporation, with assets of $235,000,000 and an annual business of more than $450,000,000, is seen by La Salle Street in plans for the merger of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Montgomery Ward & Co., the two largest mail order houses in the country.

Negotiations have reached a point where government sanction will be sought, Chicago newspapers said today.

The plan, according to La Salle Street's information, is the formation of a new corporation to absorb the present companies, with an exchange of stock of the new concern for that of the old companies.

Financial observers estimated the merger would effect a saving of $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 a year in operating expenses.

The outlay now made by both houses for catalogues alone runs between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000.

The largest interest in Sears, Roebuck is held by Julius Rosenwald, with L. Sale Street estimating his holdings around three-quarters of the 4,200,000 shares of no par capital stock outstanding, with a current market value of nearly $164,000,000. The largest interest in Montgomery Ward is held by the J. P. Morgan First National Bank group of New York, and is estimated at one-third of the 1,141,751 shares of $10 par common stock outstanding, with a market value of $25,000,000.

The total combined business of the two corporations this year is expected to exceed $470,000,000, compared with $429,000,000 last year.

REAFFIRMS THAT BRITISH COMMONERS GET DRUNK

London, Oct. 26 (I.N.S.).—Dr. Alfred Salter, Labor M. P., in the House of Commons today, defended his recent charges that members were guilty of over-indulgence in intoxicants during the session. "I am not prepared to withdraw, modify, qualify or apologize for anything I have said," Dr. Salter declared today.

DEVONIAN HERE WITH NOTABLE PASSENGERS

When Hazel Nuttall, daughter of a Providence artist, stepped from the liner Devonian after it docked here today, she carried with her a shiny button from the coat of Captain A. W. V. Peart, a souvenir of an eventful trip to Europe and return on the big ship.

Several weeks ago the girl was carried aboard the liner as it was about to depart from Boston, her leg encased in a plaster cast. Every officer on the ship did his part toward entertaining her.

Because of their thoughtfulness the girl decided to repay them in a small way on the return trip, her injury healed. A talented ukulele player, she entertained nightly. Just before the Devonian docked here today with 75 passengers for this port, Captain Trant presented her with one of the shiny buttons from his uniform.

Rev. William S. Chase of New York, who led the fight against Lula Virgo's admission to this country, was among the passengers leaving the liner at Boston. Other notables were Gladys M. Crichton, London representative for Jordan Marsh Company and Mrs. S. Hardwick and her daughter Mary, promoter in Springfield.

Prosperous San Antonio Typifies Whole South

By B. C. FORBES

IN THE SOUTH, Oct. 26.—Is America prosperous? Has the South been prospering?

Instead of giving generalities, I will perhaps be best to describe in some detail what has happened and is happening in one essential South ern city, San Antonio. It would doubtless be an exaggeration to say that there have been equally signifi cant happenments in all Southern communities, but it can be said truthfully that the progress under way in San Antonio is more or less typical of recent progress in most Southern centers.

B. C. Forbes

WHAT HAS a rather thorough investigation of conditions in the largest city of Texas revealed? Here are illuminating facts:

San Antonio today has the largest bank deposits in its history. Ditto savings deposits.

Bank clearings for September were $49,000,000 over September of last year.

More money is available for investment than ever before and in terest rates never before were so favorable in the Southwest.

THE GREATEST building pro gram in the city's history is scheduled for the next twelve months.

At least half-a-dozen new sky scrapers, ranging $1,000,000 and about to rise in the business district.

So far this year, five new homes have been built every day. In addition, 768 new apartments have been built this year, and an increasing number is planned.

Some twenty new sub-divisions are in process of development, pro viding for at least 3,000 homes, to average $5,000.

A most imposing new municipal auditorium, located in beautiful grounds in the heart of the city, has been opened. So has a million dollar municipal auto building. Ad ditional hotel accommodations have been provided.

Church building and school build ing have been active, the latter in cluding an imposing new junior high school, the Thomas Nelson Page. The Witte museum in Brack enridge Park—the latter one of the most beautiful in America—has been completed.

Industrial construction has in cluded one new factory factory, costing $300,000.

A FLOOD diversion dam project, reminding one of the more im pressive water power dams so casionally seen in the West, is all but built, giving the city a beautiful new drive and opening up an ideal residential section.

THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC has vigorously started work on an extension into the Rio Grande valley, giving San Antonio a new trade out let of inestimable potentialities.

"San Antonio's port," Corpus Christi, soon expects to deep water navigation two or three weeks ago at a cost of $5,000,000.

SAN ANTONIO'S trade territory this year raised upwards of a million bales of cotton—and the bulk of it was sold before prices dropped. Fall shipments of truck and fruit promise to be the largest ever mar keted.

More than 8,000 families have this year bought lands for intensive farming in what is called the Winter Garden district southwest of San Antonio. Many of them have al ready settled on this rich land, while others will come once they gather their crops elsewhere. Thousands of orange trees have been planted here.

The citizens are about to vote on a $2,000,000 bond issue for various civic improvements.

IF THAT does not spell progress and prosperity, what does it spell?

NEW ENGLAND "APPLE WEEK" UNDER WAY

By FRANK B. MELOON,
Financial Editor

While next Sunday sees the official start of New England's "Apple Week," I find boosting the fruit of our orchards is already under way in a good many communities. Window displays are very numerous. Last year about 130 towns and cities joined in the official "Apple Week" program. This year the number is likely to be considerably larger. The uniform week's celebration seems to be playing a conspicuous part in placing New England apples in a foremost position.

Next Thursday, as stated in this column several years ago, Anthony H. G. Fokker, born in Holland, opens this season of Assembly luncheons at the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Up to the current year his company has built and sold more than 10,000 planes, including the one that flew over the North Pole. It was while entertaining flying machines for the Germans he invented the machine gun with synchronizing gears that made possible firing between the revolving propeller blades. He made 42,000 of these for the Germans. Fokker now has an American plant.

Inventor Fokker

Manager C. W. Barron of the Boston News Bureau starts his latest "Wall Street Sermon" with the statement: "Boston Capitalists admit there are some questions he cannot answer." This paragraph has to do with one he tried to answer this week. He was asked about the "Allies' pay ing debts to us, and said in part: "They must pay in goods, but since their goods cannot get in because of our high tariff wall, I sometimes wonder how they will be able to pay them at all." A Washington dispatch the other day stated that, of five billions' worth of imports into this country last year, only one and a half billion dollars' worth paid any duty at all.

It might also be pointed out that debtor nations need not necessarily seek a market in the United States. They are at liberty to sell elsewhere, if they wish, and pay the profits to Uncle Sam.

Victor M. Cutter, president of the United Fruit Company, sails on the Aquitania tomorrow on a six weeks' trip to study European conditions and visit the company's agencies in England and on the continent. The company is taking advantage of the dull conditions arising from the British coal strike to repair six vessels of the British fleet, and these ships will be ready for operation the first of January, 1927.

DURING funeral services today for C. C. Jackson the offices of Jackson & Curtis will be closed.

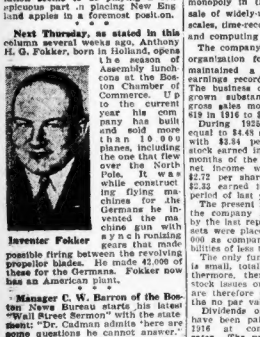
WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING COMPANY

A Dividend of 2% ($1.00 per share) on the COMMON STOCK of this Company, for the quarter ending September 30 1926 will be paid October 30, 1926, to stock holders of record as of September 20 1926

H. F. BARTZ, Treasurer.

New York, September 15, 1926.

Stock Analysis



International Business Machine Corporation possesses a practical monopoly in the manufacture and sale of widely-used types of clocks, scales, time-recorders and tabulating and computing devices.

The company, which is a holding organization founded in 1911, has maintained a consistently good earnings record since organization. The business of the company has grown substantially and steadily, gross sales mounting from $6,179,- 619 in 1916 to $15,432,429 in 1925.

During 1925 net income was equal to $4.48 a share as compared with $3.34 per share of capital stock earned in 1924. The first six months of the present year saw a net income which was equal to $2.72 per share as compared with $2.32 earned in the corresponding period of last year.

The present financial condition of the company is excellent, judging by the last report, since current assets were placed at nearly $10,000,- 000 as compared with current liabilities of less than $2,000,000.

The only funded debt outstanding is small, totalling $5,483,500. Furthermore, there are no preferred stock issues outstanding. Earnings are therefore entirely applicable to the no par value capital stock.

Dividends on this capital stock have been paid continuously since 1916 at consistently increasing rates. The present rate is $5 per share per year.

AM. HIDE AND LEATHER IN RED INK FOR QUARTER

American Hide & Leather Company reports for the quarter ended September 30 net loss of $93,775 after interest, taxes and depreciation. This compares with a net profit of $156,810, after depreciation in the quarter ended September 30, 1925, and a net profit of $160,474 in the corresponding quarter of 1924. For the nine months ended September 30 the company had a net loss of $240,- 000 as compared with net profit equivalent against a net profit of $406,- 886 in the corresponding period last year.

MACHINE TOOL SALES IN NEW ENGLAND GOOD

American Machinist reports our leak in machine tool and metal working industry continues favorable. Most factories are busy and in many cases orders are being taken on some speed production for remainder of year.

Manufacturers of high-production machinery are also taken on some good orders in the New England district

Foshay's Purchase

Rumor says W. B. Foshay Co., which has purchased control of the Montpelier & Barre Light & Power Co., is paying $10 a share for the common stock and $1.40 a share for the preferred.

GIANTS GET TUFTS' STAR PITCHER

Brilliant Twirler, Sought by Boston Red Sox, Goes to New York

FRANKLIN (MONK) SHUMAN, sensational twirler of the Tufts College baseball team for the past three years, will wear a New York Giants' uniform next season.

Although Shuman still has more than a year of study before him at Tufts, where he is matriculating in the Engineering School, he will join the Giants this Spring at their training camp. He is ineligible for further service with the Tufts baseball team, as he already has twirled three years for the Jumbos.

Frank Shuman

Shuman also was sought by the Boston Red Sox and every club in the New England League has been making overtures to land the lanky right-hander, who stands well over six feet in height and propels his sphere with the speed of a Walter Johnson.

As the star twirler of the Jumbo nine Shuman made an enviable record. He turned in many notable victories, among them a triumph over the formidable Boston College aggregation last Spring. Later he forced the Eagles into a thirteen-inning game which he lost because of faulty support.

Shuman first attracted attention four years ago as a pitcher for the Medford club of the Boston Twilight League. During the past Summer he pitched brilliantly for the Somerville and Malden clubs of the Twilight League. He finished the 1926 season in the Blackstone League, where his work attracted the attention of many big league scouts.

GARKAWIENKO, MUNN WIN IN GOTHAM MAT BATTLES

New York, Oct. 26 (I.N.S.).—Alex Garkawienko, Polish, Russian and Ukrainian champion, and Wayne (Big) Munn, former world's champion, were easy winners last night in the feature bouts of the wrestling season's first show.

They disposed of their respective opponents, Tom Lurich and Howard Cantonetto in a total of 21 minutes and 40 seconds.

B. U. BASKETBALL CANDIDATES REPORT

Boston University basketball team has reported for practice. The reason for the early workouts is the development of a team to defeat Harvard.

The Crimson will be played on December 17. By that time, the Terriers will be out a month and one half and will have played two games.

AULBACH AND CONROY LEAD MERRIMACK VALLEY G. C.

Methuen, Oct. 25.—George Aulbach of Ardmont and Jimmy Conroy, the Brae Junior champion, with low gross total of 112 led the field in the 27-hole amateur-pro best-ball tourney of the Merrimac Valley Country Club.

TUFTS GRIDDERS WHO WILL FURNISH OPPOSITION FOR HARVARD SATURDAY

ELLIS, Quarterback — BOWKER, End — HANSON, Tackle — CAPT. SCHROEDER, Halfback

Chapman Is Favorite for Smith Bout Tonight

By JACK CONWAY.

RED CHAPMAN will attempt to start a new surge in the direction of the world's featherweight championship when he collides with Steve Smith of Bridgeport in a ten-round tussle at a Commercial A. C. show at Mechanics Building tonight. The speculative element has installed the Dorchester youth a favorite and he should come through with a victory.

Chapman is as red hot as ever after the world's featherweight crown.

"I am one of the few so-called featherweights who can make 128 pounds," Red told me today. "I have been obliged to give away weight in most of my bouts to get down to featherweights and I am confident I can win.

I shall then be prepared to take on Benny Bass or any other featherweight provided the weight is 126 pounds. I am tired of battling a flock of junior lightweights who are rooting as feathers eights."

Although it is the consensus of opinion that Chapman will come through with a win tonight, he will not have any picnic doing so. Smith is one of the best of the featherweights and will set a wild pace for Chapman.

The Bridgeport warrior has been here since his winning engagement with Johnny Risko in Hartford and feels confident I can win.

Jack Conway

The Crimson will be played on December 17. By that time, the Terriers will be out a month and one half and will have played two games.

BOXING MENU TONIGHT

Red Chapman, Dorchester, vs. Steve Smith, Bridgeport, ten rounds.

Frank Senk, Springfield, vs. Jimmy Armeto White, New York, six rounds.

Eddie Adonis, Y. M. C. A., vs. Larry Brigolia, Cambridge, six rounds.

Joe Cook, Chelsea, vs. Billy Catue, U. S. S. Florida, six rounds.

Eddie Murphy, South Boston, vs. Nick Zinner, South Boston, four rounds.

Joe Costello, South End, vs. Joe Sargus, Derry, N. H.

PAT McCARTHY, Roxbury heavyweight, has been signed to battle Harry Persson, Swedish heavy weight, in a twelve round bout at Hartford on November 8. McCarthy recently fought a twelve-round draw with Johnny Risko in Hartford and is quite a card in that city.

Jim MacDonald showed me a new contract with the Roxbury socker. This puts at rest the rumors that McCarthy was to join the fistic stables of several of our local managers who were angling for his services.

IT is likely that Jack Sharkey's next start will be in this city the Eddie of December. Sharkey in the meantime will take a much deserved vacation.

During a period of five weeks, Sharkey defeated Willis, Griffiths and Riverberg. He followed this in a week on the stage. After his vacation, the conqueror of Willis and he will tackle all comers as fast as the matches can be arranged.

THE preliminary card will consist of three six round bouts and a couple of four rounders.

The all-round semi final will bring together Frank Senk of Springfield and Jimmy Armsto White of New York. Eddie Adonis former amateur champion, will travel six sessions with Larry Brigolia of Cambridge, while the other six will feature Joe Cook. Chapman's sparring partner, and Billy Catue of the U. S. S. Florida.

In the four rounders, Eddie Murphy of South Boston will collide with Nick Zinner, also from the Peninsula district, while Joe Costello of the South End will oppose Joe Sargus of Derry, N. H.

Green Coaches Seek to Patch Up Line for Brown Game

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 26.—The Dartmouth team resumed practice today after its game with Harvard. The Green team will make an attempt to patch up its line before it meets Brown this week-end.

The Bruins defeated the powerful Yale aggregation, 7—0, and Saturday, if they show the same flash and speed, should make a formidable antagonist for the Green.

During the game with Harvard the Green line was outclassed in practically every play. In the Yale-Brown game, Brown displayed a big head, charging line that enabled the backs to successfully carry out their plays. Dartmouth will need a much better and more experienced line than the one that played at Harvard Unless the Green line improves it looks as though Brown will be the favorite.

Coach Hawley called off the practice, being content to have a short chalk talk in which he outlined the big defects of the game at the stadium.

LEO DALEY HAS HIS APPENDIX REMOVED

Leo Daley, veteran guard of the Harvard football eleven, is reported "resting comfortably," following an operation for appendicitis at 7:30 o'clock this morning at the Brooks Memorial Hospital, Brookline.

The operation was performed by Dr. Thomas G. Richards and Dr. M. E. McGarty.

Daley's path to football fame has been obstructed by misfortune ever since he entered Harvard from Phillips Andover three years ago, where he ranked as the greatest lineman to captain the prep school eleven.

Daley is a senior at Harvard and he was counted upon as one of the mainstays of the 1926 eleven until two weeks ago, when an attack of appendicitis sent him to the Brooks Hospital for observation. He was released after twenty four hours and resumed the football squad, but has been kept on the sidelines.

Injuries kept Daley from the big games of the freshman team of which he was a member. In 1924 a twisted kneecap kept him out of the lineup and he did not play a full game last year because of mishaps.

Daley has been suffering with appendicitis ever since the 1926 season opened, but it was not thought, until within the past twenty four hours that his condition was serious enough to force the operation.

CHANGE DUE IN AMHERST LINEUP FOR AGGIE GAME

Amherst, Mass., Oct. 26.—Amherst contemplates a shift in its lineup when the Purple meets the Massachusetts Aggie eleven here Saturday for the town title, according to Coach Harry White, who announced today that he would concentrate on his wing squad to develop capable understudies for the regulars.

Mahoney and Britain will probably draw the flank assignments against the State institution. While also will emphasize work for his scrub backs, with Stauffer undergoing hard drilling to prepare him for an every halfback assignment this week end.

Tunney to Act as Pallbearer at Greb Funeral

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 26 (A. P.).—Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight boxing champion, will act as a pallbearer at the funeral of Harry Greb, former middleweight title-holder, who died at Atlantic City last Friday, following an operation.

Services for Greb will be held tomorrow and Tunney has informed friends he will step off in Pittsburgh en route from Dayton, O., to New York, in order to attend.

Horween Gives Harvard Grid Heroes No Rest

By TED LYNCH.

Victories, while always welcome, have no effect on the driving tactics of the Harvard grid coaches. The win over the "Big Green" has not altered the plans of Arnold Horween and his assistants in the least. The mentors saw countless mistakes in the play of their charges last Saturday and have started in to remedy these faults.

Still feeling the effects of the bruising game with the Green and with the commendatory pats Tufts elven as their next opponent, the Crimson players were of opinion that the first few practice sessions this week were to be of light nature.

NO REST

But they are not doing things that way at the Stadium. The western coaches started the week off with a real scrimmage.

The starting players Saturday with the exception of Captain Garvine, did not scrimmage, but they were not given a day off. The entire squad was put through the regular grind of scrimmaging, made only to think the Yale game was next on the list.

Every substitute played an active part in the scrimmage against the seconds, Guarnaccia, at end as they make them, is one of the type that scrimmages every day and likes it, and he appeared with the Team B backfield.

The boys in scrimmage took things rather leisurely at first favoring their slight hurts. This stuff might have passed muster under the lenient rules of former years, but not in the present. Observing that his charges were taking things too much for granted, he promptly behind the practices, and in a short talk made the players aware of the presence of the high powered lights and the stands and field and told them that unless they crossed the seconds goal line within six minutes they would not terminate [illegible] after dark.

The players took the tip and ripped up the seconds [illegible] makers within [illegible] the head coach called [illegible] things easy after a [illegible] entirely out of style at Harvard. From the opening day in September until the Yale game Horween demands drive and he gets.

WESLEYAN PREPARES FOR TRINITY TEST SATURDAY

Middletown, Ct., Oct. 26.—The Wesleyan regular was out in full form today in spite of the hard game with Amherst on Saturday. The coaches favored the men lightly as the field was muddy and they spent most of the time [illegible] the defects in the play against Amherst.

A scrimmage has been arranged for tomorrow which will be an over-largely to defense as the Wesleyan will take on Coach [illegible] Trinity, on Saturday in Hartford.

The outcome of the Amherst game was disappointing to coaches and players. The opinion seems to be that the Sabrinas had in Fullback Madigan a ground gainer of stellar rank.

DUCATS FOR NOTRE DAME-ARMY GAME ON SALE

New York, Oct. 26.—Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees announced today that tickets for the Notre Dame-Army game to be played Nov. 13 in the Yankee Stadium, will go on sale tomorrow morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, at the offices of the club at 5[illegible] 161st street. A public [illegible] limited to [illegible] to be found.

Quaker Halfback Threatens to Eclipse Grange's Record

Philadelphia, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—Charlie Rogers, the University of Pennsylvania's great running halfback, hopes, before the football season is over, to shatter the ground-gaining record of Red Grange.

Figures announced today by the Pennsylvania athletic authorities show that in five games Rogers has torn up the sod for 675 yards and in three of these contests he played only a portion of the time. In two games while a member of the Illinois team three years ago Grange hung up a total of 1043 yards in nine contests.

In the opening game this season against Franklin and Marshall, Rogers made a total of 145 yards in three periods while the following Saturday against Swarthmore he gained 151 yards in forty-five minutes of play.

Against Johns Hopkins the Red and Blue flash circled the ends or cut off tackle for 116 yards. He tore past the Chicago line for 132 yards, and in last Saturday's contest against Williams he gained 101 yards in the single period he played.

Tunney Pays Tribute to Superior Skill of Harry Greb

CHAPTER NINETEEN

This is the nineteenth chapter of Gene Tunney's own story of himself—of his life and fighting career, written exclusively for the Boston Evening American.

By GENE TUNNEY
World's Heavyweight Champion

Gene Tunney

WHEN I faced Harry Greb for the second time, I felt it wasn't in the cards for me to be cut up the way I was in our first bloody battle. I thought also that I had inspired respect in Greb's heart.

It was in the thirteenth round of our first fight that I learned how to lick Greb. I knew that I would defeat him in the second meeting because he would lead with a right hand.

I had made a mistake of trying to counter with a right to the body and by stepping under his punch. I learned that I should wait, feint and then step OUTSIDE instead of inside his punch.

I would have made a success of this in the first fight had my legs not been too weary and my feet too securely glued to the floor to permit of the quick dance step, and the left hand to the body.

Greb, too, had hit me with everything he possessed in that first fight and I had taken them without falling to the floor. So, when we met February 23, 1923, at the Garden, I was fit for the fifteen rounds of milling and pleasure of victory. It was a cleancut triumph and I beat Greb at his own game.

A steady, gruelling left-hand attack on Greb's body, sidestepping as I countered his right hand leads, brought me back my light heavyweight championship just as I had planned.

From a howling tornado, Greb dwindled to a mild breeze. The wings of the Pittsburgh Windmill were drooping. Getting slammed in the stomach never was known to increase a man's speed. As early as the second, I had Greb wobbly. I had pounded him from collar button to belt line.

Gamblers Hard Hit by Champs Victory

But Greb, as I have said before, was a great fighter. He never knew the meaning of the word "quit." He came back for the seventh with flaming spirit. But it proved but a flash.

For the rest of the battle he resorted to his usual tactics and in the twelfth round Referee Patsy Haley himself a fire-eater, warned Greb against his inclination for rough house activities. Holding and hitting were Harry's aces in the last four rounds.

I understand that there was loud weeping, wailing and gnashing of teeth among "sure thing" gamblers. They had shifted at the last moment to Greb.

One of the funny spots of the fight was the scene just preceding it. My manager, Billy Gibson, and all the retinue of Greb were explaining to Referee Haley what constituted a foul.

Haley, a veteran fighter and a man whose courage in handling bouts never has been surpassed (for instance when he disqualified Harry Wills recently in the fight against Jack Sharkey), listened patiently.

Everyone was gesticulating and shouting. All this time Greb was fanning about the ring mad as a hornet, and I think that he wasted some valuable energy before hostilities commenced.

At the very onset, Greb started circling about trying to fool me. But I sent a hard right to his body that stopped his circling. During the fight, I recognized beyond the crowd yell for me in "rough him." One time he held my head in chancery.

But rough or mild, I always will maintain that Greb ranks with the best of them. He wasn't intentionally dirty or foul. He was just built for rough work and knew no style but the most vigorous sort.

Crowd Arrayed Against Pittsburgher

The crowd was against Greb. In fact, the crowds usually were against him. That is another reason why I think he was great. You have heard some fighters claim they never heard the cheers that greeted them or bothered about the so-called razzing they may have drawn. But I always felt encouraged when the boys gave me a hand. I will admit that when I got going and was put in hot water I wasn't listening to the roar of the fans. However, when there were cheers for me, it heartened me.

If any fighter in the world had his choice, I believe he had rather perform before a friendly than a hostile audience. I presume this goes for all branches of sport.

Yet Greb, the fray of Pittsburg only bared his teeth or shook his head like a wounded bull when he was hissed, booed and given the catcall.

Billy Gibson was elated at my victory over Greb. I too, was glad, but I felt that I still had a lot to learn. I was confident now that science was the thing I needed in a high degree to win higher honors in the fistic game.

New ages, says Emerson, conquer the old. I felt that the new art of boxing, as begun by James J. Corbett, would be the final goal for all champions.

Here and there you will continue to find some superlative slugger who for a time will dominate his field, just as the immortal old John L. did. But his conqueror usually will prove to be the scientist.

As surely as the invention of gunpowder was destined to doom the heiress, the science of the crafty and heady boxer will level the brute force of the slugger.

My success with Greb did not mean the death of my ambitions—not merely a start. The fact that I was growing and that I was having some difficulty in making the light heavyweight limit of 175 pounds led me to believe that I would become a legitimate heavy ultimately.

I redoubled my efforts. I exercised much. I took up golf seriously, because it afforded life in the open and relaxation. My golf game today is fairly good.

Gibson is an ardent golfer. Indeed, he gives the "pros" an awful time of it up around the Westchester-Biltmore Club. My putting could be improved on, but I could get into tournament form if I had another ten years of the game. But I will not brag on my ability at golf because I don't want my friends, Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen and Tweetser, to launch their heads off.

(My typist just told me: "But, Mr. Tunney, you shouldn't have ended that last sentence with a preposition!" To which, my only defense is that Joseph Addison, one of our greatest stylists, often closed his sentences with prepositions.)

(Tomorrow Tunney tells how he learned many of his boxing tricks from Gene Delmont and Spike Webb.)

Bush to Have Free Rein as Manager of Pirates

Pittsburgh, Oct. 26 (I.N.S.).—"The new manager will be in complete authority and will pick his own aides," Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, said today, commenting upon his selection of Owen J. (Donie) Bush as the new Pirate manager. Bush's contract is for one year.

The new Pirate manager succeeds "Bill" McKechnie, who was ousted after an unsuccessful season in which much club dissension cropped out. Bush played shortstop for the Detroit Tigers for many seasons and was manager of the Washington Senators in 1923.

VICTOR NAMES ALL WINNERS IN CONTEST

Last Saturday was another mad day for pickers of football winners and not only the experts but the fans dabbled most of the day. Those in the know were in session in Newport, R. I., who has learned a lesson from preceding Saturdays, is too smart to be fooled at all. Close contests and close points won't prove to Herb Victor a contest.

Herb Watterson, who reads at 11 Rhode Island street, Newport, won the honors when only he was able to only fan who landed on all the winners. Even the second and third place honors made their mistakes. But Watterson, although off a lick on his scores, came through nice with Brown and Harvard among his choices for victory.

Herb found possess of two seats to the Harvard-Tufts engagement next Saturday and is going to leave Dame of Cambridge. Third prize went to Charles Dixon of No. 4 Linwood Street, Quincy. Both of these winners will receive a pair of seats for the Boston College-Virginia Wesleyan game.

PICKERS GO WRONG.

The fact that all the hundreds of fans, but one, who picked 'em along with Trent, missed out on the upset tickets of the day shows just what a hard life a gridiron dopester is living these days.

Trent has the same persistence when consigning all the army or navy jinx and has handed himself a lick. The fans another tough assignment for the ensuing week. Here they are.

Army vs. Yale; Harvard vs. Tufts; Brown vs. Dartmouth; Boston College vs. West Virginia Wesleyan; Notre Dame vs. Georgia Tech.

Beat that for a tough list! This week the winner certainly earned his dicers. Next week the winner will certainly earn his—or hers. This contest has proved that the men are not the only ones capable of lining up grid teams. So come on, fans, men, women and children, let's have your selections.

Accompany your choices with a letter of 100 words of explanation, and have them in by Thursday midnight. On Friday Trent's own selections will appear as usual. Yours must be in before that time to avoid TAKE ANOTHER SHOT.

The 100 word letters are important as these serve to decide ties. They help the Contest Editor to determine just how much you know about the team you pick. The letters received so far denote that the majority of fans know pretty much what they are talking about.

Retail Store Nines Honored

Mid-Summer bantering, umpire-baiting and "razzing" among young athletes of the Retail Stores' Baseball League gave way to exchanges of a friendly nature and a period of convivial enjoyment when the stars and leaders gathered at the banquet board and a theatre party.

More than 100 players of the six league teams, league officials and scribes participated in the evening of fun and frolic.

The championship of the department store organization this year was officially awarded the Houghton and Dutton outfit, and with it went a leg on the cup. Last year the R. H. White nine won the first leg on the trophy.

George Callahan, president of the league and manager of the triumphant Houghton and Dutton team presided as toastmaster. A. C. Buck made the presentation speech, and the H. and D. nine were roundly cheered by their rivals when the trophy was transferred.

The teams completed the list in schedule in the following order: Houghton and Dutton, R. H. White, Gilchrist, Filene's, Kerry's and Bigelow Sanford.

BROWN AWAITS CRUCIAL TEST WITH GREEN

Providence, R. I., Oct. 26.—Having the Yale game tucked away, Coach Tuss McLaughry of the Brown football team is priming his stalwarts for the clash with the Big Green at Hanover this week. All of the eleven men who made gridiron history in the Yale Bowl came through in fine shape.

The problem of keeping the men from going stale is the biggest one the Ruth coaches have on their hands, but if there is any sign of a letdown actual scrimmage will be served the Bear warriors. A signal drill for seven of the eleven men who played last Saturday was held yesterday, while the squad was given a blackboard talk last evening.

The Brown team will hold a short practice session Thursday before leaving in the afternoon for Lebanon, N. H. where the Brunonian camp will be established.

Greatest Golf Shot That I Ever Saw

As Told to J. C. Kofoed
By CHARLEY HOFFNER
Noted Professional Player

JOHNNY McDERMOTT, one of the greatest home-bred golfers America ever saw, and holder of the national championship in 1911 and 1912, made the greatest shot under pressure that I ever saw. It was not an accident, for Jack had spent hour after hour, day after day in perfecting himself on just that sort of shot. It would not be very far out of the way to say that he was one of the finest masters of the iron clubs that ever lived.

This shot of his came on the eighteenth hole of the Englewood Country Club in the Metropolitan open championship of 1911. Great as Mac was, he was opposed by wonderful players in that tournament, among them Gil Nicholls—a really splendid player, and one still hard to detest in competition.

Nicholls had been playing excellent golf and was breezing along in front of the field. It was in the second round, and Gil was in the clubhouse, having finished his day's work. McDermott, coming along behind him, reached the eighteenth tee some time later.

There were a number of people waiting there, and Johnny asked some one how Nicholls had done.

"Pretty well. You need a three here to tie him."

"Now, John was always pretty cocky and self-assertive and had the confidence and ability to back himself up.

"Well, I'm not going to tie him," he said. "I'm going to get a two, and go in the lead."

The hole is 190 yards and well trapped. In addition there was a strong head wind blowing in his teeth.

McDermott took an iron—and he was nearly as accurate with that club as with his deadly mashie—cut the ball into the wind, and laid it exactly two feet from the pin. Just an ounce more of power, and he would have holed out. It was as perfectly executed a shot as was ever made in a pinch, and it put him ahead of Nicholls.

But that was Jack McDermott all over. He was at his best when the pinch was tightest.

(Tomorrow—Johnny Farrell reviews the golf season in Connecticut.)

This is the seventh of a series of articles by the most famous golf players in America which will appear daily in the Boston Evening American. Tomorrow Johnny Farrell will tell of "the greatest golf shot he ever saw."

Kaplan to Battle Le Marin on Mat

Jewish Athletic Night will be the big feature at the regular wrestling show at the Scenic Auditorium tomorrow night. The occasion has been arranged as a special honor to Abe Kaplan, the clever Jewish heavyweight wrestler, who has decisively defeated all opponents since coming to Boston some few weeks ago.

Kaplan will be pitted against Francois Le Marin, the idol of France, who has but recently arrived in this country and who if he measures up to his reputation abroad, will cut a wide swath in the ranks of the mat men on this side of the Atlantic. The semi-final will present Lale Therie, sensational Italian strong boy and John Maloney, the South Boston giant. The other bouts between well known wrestlers will be on the card.

ANDY CHANEY SIGNS TO BOX BILLY MURPHY

The Triangle A. A. of Lowell is staging its first show at the Crescent Rink, Lowell, November 4. Billy Murphy, Junior lightweight champion of New England, and Andy Chaney of Baltimore will clash in the feature bout of 10 rounds.

This is an excellent attraction and the largest crowd that ever attended a bout in South Scituate City will turn out that evening. Murphy is a home boy and very popular with the fans.

Overcoats, this Season, are Decidedly Different

RAGLANS, always favored by overseas travellers, sportsmen and men who like a light weight, tough fabric, loose coat with natural shoulders, big pockets and lots of leg room, are preferred by many college men and other smart dressers, this season.

The new double breasted, three button raglan with big patch pockets, made up in light and dark Scotch woolens or Irish tweeds is one of the most popular models shown by Boston men's stores who advertise in the Boston American and the Boston Advertiser.

BANNY WANTS TO STICK TILL HE COLLECTS

DAVID BANCROFT, shortstop wonder, will continue as manager of the Braves, various rumors from many sources notwithstanding. Banny is flitting around the country just now with Judge Fuchs, Brave owner, and the pair of them are hatching up some real baseball deal. The manager and the Judge are convinced that they can have a contending ball club, if they get just a little more strength in one or two spots. They're chasing that strength. The Judge has thrown his entire bankroll into the native outfit. So he wants to cash in. He has the habit of doing things in a big way. If he finds some star for sale for a million dollars, he'll dig up the million somewhere. With no strings attached, he can proceed with his ball club as he sees fit. From what we've seen of Judge, he'll get himself a winner right away quick, or go broke trying.

Nick Flatley

Manager Banny likes Boston. He has had a tough time here with his club, but the village, after three years, has finally grabbed him as it does most of the visitors who linger long enough. The boy skipper is a close personal friend of the owner, which is always a good combination. We asked David if he ever had thought of transferring to Pittsburgh.

"I'd sooner be a bat boy in Boston," he came back, "than a manager anywhere else. Things have been made perfect for me here, and I want to stick around long enough to do a little something in return."

TINY SCRAPPERS CAN PACK 'EM IN HERE

BOSTON gets a peek at a real championship boxing war when Chick Suggs and Honeyboy Finnegan collide next month. Both scrappers are right up at the pinnacle, and a study of the feather field proves pretty conclusively that the crown rests between the pair. Benny Bass and a few others have a claim, but the New England champions are out to fight.

A real title scrap is a rarity here. When champions come, generally they have hand-picked opponents, or fix the weights so that the laurels cannot be knocked off. The boxers are prosperous business men, and Boston cannot offer big enough gates. There will never be a heavyweight crown battled for here, unless some champ happens to get careless in an exhibition row.

The new Arena gives fight clubs a chance to collect some rather large money, and can attract the champs in some of the lighter classes. The little fellows are desperately, brilliantly and earnestly thin, the hulking heavies, but the fans like beef with their wallops, and the fans have the final say.

The little New Bedford negro and the Dorchester flash both can draw. They will attract the biggest "gate" Boston has known. It may be large enough to show other champs that the pickings here are worth while.

BIG WILL TILDEN is going to remain an amateur, and chase his little again. Will will have an easy time winning it back, if M. Pyle keeps signing the boys up. Perhaps the shrewd Tilden sees the possibilities of a title match with the pro net champion, not so many years away.

CHANCE HERE FOR TWO GREAT TEAMS TO CRASH

CHICK MEEHAN, one of the great coaches, has hauled New York University up out of the unknown. The Meehan team looks as good as anything in the country, but like some other great outfits, has no particular opposition left on the program after next Saturday. And Chick will find that the so-called good teams will be chary of taking his young men on another season.

Boston College has been up against the same proposition for quite a number of years, though the Eagles might have helped themselves in the matter of schedule if they had inaugurated the freshman rule. The other colleges do that little thing, so they can't be criticised for defeating that opponents follow suit. B. C. has been stalling along on a freshman law, but will go to it next Fall. Things may change then.

What we started to say, though, was that an annual game with N. Y. U. and Boston College as the contenders would be an artistic and financial success. The teams would jam them in, here and in New York. And the brand of football would be the very best

YALE COACHES SHIFT LINEMEN

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 26.—Yale will this afternoon begin serious preparations for the Army game with greatly strengthened guard and tackle material. Bill Vandegrift is the only regular stiff on the hospital list and until he and Behrens Ryan fully regain physical condition, Bill Webster, who is essentially a guard, will be retained at right tackle.

The coaches have made a shakeup in the guard positions by turning them over to Guy Richards, last year's left tackle, who has returned to practice after a month's absence in the hospital, and William Orville Hickok 4th., who has been on the scrubs practically all the fall. Hickok is a son of namesake of one of Yale's most famous guards, of three decades ago. Richards has been tackle for two seasons.

Charlesworth, who has played guard for three weeks, went back to the second eleven, and Carl Stutsman, his companion flank player, is out of condition and will not report for two or three days.

The return of the veteran Dick Worthan to the lineup has also materially added to the strength of the guard material. Worthan and Charlesworth, who have been assigned second string flank rojes for the present, will alternate with Richards and Hickok until after the West Point game.

Larry Noble will this afternoon do his first scrimmaging in ten days, returning to left halfback. Dwight Fishwick has recovered from his ankle injuries and will be started at left end today.

MAJ. 'CAV' NOW OPEN TO ALL GRID OFFERS

By BILL GRIMES.

Major Frank Cavanaugh of Boston College, who has turned down more attractive coaching offers in the past year than most coaches do in a lifetime, has altered his views on the situation and is now open to consider any and all approaches.

There was a hue and cry raised against Cav at B. C. last year. The Heights college waited months before offering Cavanaugh his present contract. During that time he was besieged from all sides by teams which desired his services.

At the football coaches' meeting in New York last Winter the University of Rochester backed by the Kodak King, George Eastman, a prominent Pennsylvania College and Washington U. of St. Louis, long on his trail, gave Cav offers of extremely large sums to sign a contract. The major still held to the idea of staying in New England with his family.

Cav returned to B. C. with "his back up," determined to show the doubting Thomases that his reputation as a coach was due solely to his ability and not to newspaper publicity, as many claimed.

This year he has turned out the only undefeated, untied and unscored on team in the country. And his attitude has been changed. Cav will give careful consideration to all offers and to the contract carrying the greatest inducement he will affix his signature.

76,500 TO SEE STANFORD PLAY AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Oct. 26.—Seventy-six thousand five hundred football fans will crowd the Los Angeles Stadium to the limit October 30, when the University of Southern California battles Stanford University here. Every reserved seat has been sold for the game a week in advance, and 20,000 unreserved seats were placed on the market this week. The coliseum holds 76,500 spectators and with a sale this week before the battle of all 56,500 reserved seats a complete sell-out is assured.

This will be the first time in the history of this gigantic bowl that such a crowd will witness a football game here. Last season 68,500 saw Stanford defeat the Southern California, 13 to 9, here.

EUROPE'S CHAMP TO SEEK LAURELS IN U. S. BOUTS

Buenos Aires, Oct. 26 (A.P.)—Paulino Uzcudun of Spain, holder of the European heavyweight boxing championship, is going to the United States to seek further pugilistic honors. He will sail from Buenos Aires for New York, November 4.

Paulino, who won the European title from Ermino Spalla in Madrid, in Barcelona last July, came to Buenos Aires some time ago seeking a match with Luis Angel Firpo. He failed to lure the Argentine into the ring, however, and decided to sail for North America.

NOVICES GET CHANCE AT ST. JOE'S SHOW

Another change in the novice divisions will be made at the weekly amateur boxing tournament of the St. Joseph's T. A. S. at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin Square, Saturday night.

There will be two novice divisions, 118 and 135 pounds.

Five open classes also will be on the card. They will include 112, 126 147 and 160 pounds and heavyweight class.

Many Grid Crowns Will Topple on Saturday

By NICK FLATLEY

ANOTHER flock of football crowns will probably topple into the gridiron wastebasket Saturday. There's many a long spot on the week-end schedule, and several teams that have been riding on the high wave of glory may take a sudden plunge to the weedy depths of the bottom.

There's the chance that the laurels of victory may be attached to the wrong set of brows in any of the following contests.

Army and Yale at New Haven.
Brown and Dartmouth at Hanover.
Boston College and W. Va. Wesleyan at Braves Field.
N. Y. U. and Carnegie Tech at New York.
Penn. and Illinois at Urbana.
Navy and Michigan at Baltimore.
Cornell and Columbia at New York.

Enough opportunity for the upset is contained in this list to make the few remaining sane experts bail headed. And there are other contests scattered up and down the land that pack just as many possibilities of tragedy and drama.

The unbeaten teams of the Eastern Army, Navy, Penn, Brown, Cornell, Boston College and New York U., all stumble into trouble enough to make ruin. If things go that clicking when the whistle blows.

BIG GAME IN BOWL.

The big game of the bunch, from the spectacular standpoint, will be down at the Bowl, where Yale will try to recover from the shock of the Brown explosion, and get back in the running against the Cadets.

But the Uncle Sams aren't going to take anybody's dust without a struggle. They have been running wild, and proved against Syracuse that they have the stamina as well as the stuff. They came back in the fourth period to split the Orange, and that team looked like one of the unbeatable in the early days of the topsy turvy year.

Yale was beaten by an underrated Brown team, but Yale still has the power. If Larry Noble can get into the Saturday game, the Soldiers will put more basic field speed and class than they have known to date.

That other service team, the Navy, should be torpedoed by the great Michigan outfit. Not one one of those teams that seem to be perfect. But where surprises come so thick and fast, nothing is certain on the gridiron.

BROWN VS. GREEN.

Brown and Dartmouth will resume their long rivalry with all the old time frenzy restored. The game hasn't been taken seriously by the Green for a couple of years. The Brunn were looked down on while Dartmouth was on the heights. Now that two successive beatings have come to Jess Hawkins' outfit, things are due to pop up at Hanover.

Beating Yale stamped the Boys as a fine team with everything that goes to make champions. But Dartmouth, though wounded, isn't dead.

Pennsylvania isn't taking us any weakling at Illinois. The Westerners lost to Michigan, but they gave Yost's great outfit a whale of a battle and will have plenty of guns left for the Big Quakers. Penn is powerful and versatile, but will need to be pleased to ride into another week with a clean slate.

Boston College, with its great un defeated and uncored on team meets a real threat in West Virginia Wesleyan.

The game will give Boston fans their weekly dash of vivid football. The Eagles are out to keep themselves unscored against, while winning all their games. That's a big proposition, with any kind of a schedule, but Cav can do it, if his young men don't suffer from one of those week-end slumps that visit here and there through the season.

Harvard should have little trouble with Tufts, a good enough team in its own class, but not in the same rating with the Crimson, after what was shown Saturday in the Stadium.

The Crimson regulars will start the Tufts game, as they need all the experience they can collect to make the windup of the campaign as glorious as the beginning was gloomy. Morseen knows that one victory doesn't make a team, and has quite a job facing him to keep his heroes off the line edge that

Flexible Window Glass

A FLEXIBLE type of window glass has recently been put on the market. The glass can be rolled up like a curtain, and can also be cut with shears. It is said to be unbreakable, and may somewhat revolutionize the glass industry.

Rice Solves the Menu Problem for Family

By MARTHA LEE

RICE is one of the convenient staples around the house which answers the eternal question of "What can I serve for the next meal?" A convenient, sanitary package of it is usually on the pantry shelf and in half an hour we can make a breakfast dish, a luncheon entree, a delicious dessert or a nutritious dinner vegetable.

Rice is the "staff of life" for over half of the world's population. It ranks high for its palatability, its nutritive content, its quality of being easily and quickly digested and its almost limitless uses in a large variety of appealing dishes.

And yet, when we serve rice, two-thirds of the family sat to be excused from the table or sit listlessly waiting for the next course. That's because we do not cook it properly, take care with the seasoning, or use enough ingenuity in its preparation. Or perhaps we don't give it its proper place on the menu.

Rice requires furiously boiling water in a large sauce pan and the rice should be slowly shaken into it in order to keep the water boiling. It should then be cooked rapidly, uncovered for 20 minutes, drained through a sieve and set to dry on the stove for a few minutes over a sauce pan containing a little boiling water.

Here are balanced menus using rice:

BREAKFASTS

(1)
Stewed Figs
Boiled Rice and Milk
Cinnamon Toast — Coffee

(2)
Grapefruit
Rice Griddle Cakes with Maple Syrup
Buttered Toast — Coffee

LUNCHEONS

Escalloped Tuna Fish with Rice
Bread and Butter — Cole Slaw
Sliced Oranges — Ginger Cookies
Tea

Italian Rice (Risoto)
Bread and Butter — Fruit Salad
Tea

(3)
Cream of Tomato Soup — Crackers
Potato Salad
Chocolate Pudding — Tea

DINNERS

(1)
Minute Veal Cutlets
Buttered Rice — Celery — Peas
Bread and Butter
Pineapple and Marshmallow Cup
Coffee

Fried Filet of Haddock
Savory Rice — Corn
Bread and Butter — Relish
Hot Gingerbread with Whipped Cream — Coffee

These are the kind of meals to grow up on—to work on and to grow young on.

And here are some delicious recipes I'm sure will make the family sit up and take notice:

RICE CREOLE—Cook one large onion and 2 chopped green peppers from which the seeds have been removed, in 2 tablespoons of butter for five minutes. Add 1 cupful of rice and stir until it begins to turn color, then add ½ cupful of tomatoes, 1 teaspoonful of salt, ¼ teaspoonful of pepper and 1 cupful of stock or water and simmer without stirring for one hour.

SAVORY RICE—Cook 4 thin slices of bacon until crisp, remove from the pan and cook 3 tablespoonfuls of minced onion and 1 minced green peppers in the bacon fat for 5 minutes. Then add them to 3 cupfuls of boiled rice leaving a tablespoonful of bacon fat in the pan. Chop and add ¾ cupful fresh or canned mushrooms, 2-3 teaspoonful salt, ¼ teaspoonful pepper and the cooked bacon cut into dice; turn the mixture back into the pan in omelet shap, brown one side, slip a knife under and turn so as to brown the upper side.

We have a splendid new booklet on rice prepared by Mrs. Ida Bailey Allen and other famous cooking experts, which you will find invaluable in working this wonderful little grain into your daily meals. A letter to me will bring it to your mail box within a few hours.

Tuberculosis Is a Winning Fight

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU cannot but be interested in the winning fight against tuberculosis and in all agencies that give you protection while treading toward the victorious end of the long campaign.

Forty years ago the victim of tuberculosis, so-called consumption, was generally recognized too late and was expected to die. The treatment was empirical, usually futile. Interest in the case ended with death.

This generally took place at the most two years after the illness had been contracted.

At that time, however, it was discovered and soon generally admitted that the disease was infectious and should be treated like other infectious conditions.

About that time—it was in 1887—Fluburgh Tuberculosis Dispensary was established, the first of its kind. Its essential purpose was the creation of a centre toward which tuberculosis patients and their friends and the public could turn for direction and help, and from which there would radiate information of many kinds for the guidance of invalid patients, households and the community as a whole.

This was the first attempt to hunt down the infection—the germ—to discover its haunts and methods and to raid it on its own territory. It was designated to serve as a receiving house and centre for diagnosis, a clearing house and centre for observation, and a centre for curative treatment and supervision for the methodical examination of contacts and the investigation of their environment; for after-care, information and education.

This dispensary has demonstrated as similar ones have since done in all American cities and as no other agency could, the extensive ramifications of the disease throughout the area. It has shown that the more thoroughly an area is investigated the more is the population found to be perverted with the disease. It has thus thrown a flood of light on the influence of the factor of environment.

had not been burnt with her body, to accompany her in death.

Immediately the Shah ordered all the richest women, wives of the richest men in Persia, to gather in a great temple for a holy festival.

When they had gathered, soldiers stripped them all naked, and so they went home. Their clothes and ornaments were all burned to pacify the Shah's dead wife. It was a success. She sent word that she was satisfied.

THE SENATORIAL election in Massachusetts will test, to some extent, President Coolidge's influence in that State. He tells voters "the presence in the Senate of Senator Butler is of great importance to me."

Senator Butler's defeat, however, would not, by any means indicate repudiation of President Coolidge by Massachusetts.

Many voters reserve the right to make their own decision on candidates. But now that he is publicly endorsed, Senator Butler's defeat would not do the President any good.

SOME NEWSPAPERS remind President Coolidge of Woodrow Wilson's ill-fated advice to voters. The cases are different. Mr. Wilson had got us into war and debt, after much talk of keeping us out. President Coolidge, with Mr. Mellon's help, has been getting us out of debt.

TROTZKY IS out of the picture of Russian government. Expelled from membership in the Communist Party, he retires into the shadow. Zinoviev and Kamenev go with him. These quarrels among revolutionary leaders take you back to the French Revolution, when Robespierre cut off Danton's head and others cut off Robespierre's head. Trotzky and his friends are fortunate. They keep their heads—for the present.

THE FORMER KAISER, it is believed, will return to Germany with the consent of Prussia. He has issued "a royal command" inviting fifty old friends to a "royal court hunt" at his Romluten Castle and recently appointed a certain individual "Princely Court Counselor." Apparently he does not quite realize that the big war is over and that he is part of the wreckage.

THIS COUNTRY has little feeling about the Kaiser. He was foolish enough to tell the United States that its ships must travel on routes dictated by him or he would sink them. That ended his country's business.

But there is no bitterness against him. However, the Germans might learn something from the French, who have made a success of their republic for many years.

NO PRETENDER to the French crown, no matter how remote, may set foot on French soil.

For Germany to permit the former Kaiser's return is like planting an active cancer in the body of the German republic.

CHICAGO ATTACKS one big problem in a big way, building the "largest, best jail in the world." The cost, with a courthouse in front to help fill the jail, will be seven and a half millions. Rooms for fourteen criminal courts will be built with high ceilings, and back of the court the big jail for the modern crime army.

IN VIEW of jail breaking and the unusual energy of criminals, wouldn't it be a good idea to let jailers wear gas masks and install in corridors and the main office valves that, when opened, would flood the jail with some convincing gas of the mustard type? Nothing to kill or permanently injure the convicts, of course, but strong enough to take their minds off any jail breaking plan.

Give your joy and labor to each dawning day, lend to it your spirit, arm and proud and gay; brave and happy ever, make your high endeavor all sad ties to sever; work drives griefs away. But in all your toiling do not dare forget there is one thing better, one thing dearer yet; leave a time for dreaming, dreams are golden gleaming dreams are sunny seeming, dreams can lull regret. Work makes no life joyous save for dreaming, too; work brings no life possessing after dreams are through. A NEW type of gas radiator! Will heat a room to any desired temperature—and keep it there—regardless of weather changes.

Simply set the thermostatic regulator, which is built into each individual radiator, and the flame will be automatically raised or lowered according to fluctuations in the temperature out-of-doors. It can be left burning over Sundays and holidays without risk. Keeps things from freezing with a remarkably small amount of gas. Ideal for those bothersome cold rooms, small stores, garages, etc.

We are introducing this invention of the Grinnell Company, specialists in heating systems for 70 years. Send the coupon for booklet. Let us tell you where you can see the radiator in operation, and give you the name of a reliable contractor to install it and advise you on your heating problems. Phone or write.

The EDITOR of a Food Journal writes for herself and her staff

"NO suggestion of unpleasant commercial qualities," says the editor of a nationally known food magazine after testing White Rose Bread.

"Compares more favorably with homemade than any other bread we know," declare scores of other teachers and students of cooking who recently made similar tests of this new loaf.

No wonder women everywhere are turning to White Rose Bread. They are delighting in its richer bread flavor, in its deep, flaky, delicious crust (the result of "slow baking"), in its smooth, even grain. They are finding, too, that this loaf stays fresh longer—yet has a complete absence of "sogginess."

White Rose Bread was perfected with the help of leading food experts—authorities on cooking, on diet and nutrition. They have given their time and experience in order that you might have as fine a loaf of bread as it is possible to make.

Try White Rose Bread today. Notice the difference yourself! White Rose Bread is baked twice and rushed to your grocer—always fresh whenever you buy! Massachusetts Baking Company.

Notice the firm, even texture of White Rose Bread. See how much its full, rich flavor adds to each meal.

AN HONEST WORKING GIRL — "ANY TIME YOU WANT TO PLAY" — "SUMMER BACHELORS SAFE"

A Boston Romance With a Charming Heroine

Chapter 37.

"OH, Sloan dear," Cecelia's voice broke in, "do get a salad for mother; there's a darling. Tell the boy no anchovies—she hates them. And you may as well get some for us, too; we'll be over at the long table near the music cabinet."

"Who's us? How many?" he asked good naturedly.

"Just mamma and I, and Hoffer and you—"

"And Miss Merton—that makes five. Do you think I can carry five?" He moved away laughing.

"Oh, yes—if you'd care to join us," Cecelia said coldly.

"He was just going for salad for himself and me, so I suppose I had better. It's so swell of you to ask me!" ("There—you don't get away with THAT!") Rosemary's fighting spirit arose. She'd made up her mind not to have any more to do with Whitney, but she'd be an awful sinny if she let Cecelia freeze her out.

She almost laughed at Cecelia's discomfiture. To think she could put one over on the clever Miss Lansing, with her voice, her mother, her background and everything.

"I thought I knew all Sloan's friends—he's such a newcomer here I don't believe I ever heard him speak of you, Miss—Miss Merton."

"No?" Rosemary was game, but she felt the ground crumbling. Why didn't he hurry? What made him so slow?

"You—you aren't connected with his office, by any chance?"

His office?

"Why, I didn't know he had one!" she cried.

"Just a small office—his financial interests, you know. Only his close friends know about it. But I thought you might be a stenographer—so many girls go into business, you know. I've passed through the office a dozen times, too, but I'm so unobserving—oh, here you are, dear. We were getting anxious. And Dr. Graham with you! Tsk IS a surprise."

Through the red mist of her anger Rosemary saw Whitney bringing a tray and, at his heels, Smoky Graham with another.

Smoky looked at Rosemary with amazement in his pale, half-shut eyes. "Oh, we've met," he said, when Cecelia introduced them. "Why, Miss Merton works in my father's store!"

"Indeed," smiled Cecelia. "How interesting! And you buy your books there, don't you, dear? Why you're all such old cronies you'll leave me completely out of it!"

"Never!" whispered Smoky. "Never. And I'll never forgive myself for getting here late. Whitney says you sang Mimi. The fact is, I had a woman on the operating table, and—"

"Oh, for heaven's sake!" groaned Whitney. He caught Rosemary's arm. "Let's beat it. He gives me the pip."

"Real pals!" She laughed with the joy of it—being Sloan Whitney's pal.

It came so swiftly—Rosemary's romance.

A few short months ago and she had cried in the dark, vowed she'd never see him again, and now . . . and now . . .

It seemed so natural to be meeting him after work.

He was always just the same. Smiling and bored, and faintly mocking. He never made any attempt to slip his arm around her as they'd done before in the car. He never kissed her or held her hand as Larry and Phil and the college boys would have done.

"Are we pals?" he would ask, laughing, and smiling down at her.

At first they used to ride out in the Summer dusk for a little while after dinner, then he would turn the sand colored car and leave her to take a car home.

His wonderful car! It would be game to take a longer trip.

"Oh, Sloan—I would."

In her excitement she'd called Lim Sloan. She blushed furiously and he laughed and stopped the motor.

"Well?" he said. "Well?"

Rosemary tore herself away with a little sigh. "But before she went she said: "I really don't have to be home so early. I could stay over—"

"Tomorrow?"

"Tomorrow?"

And all the while she was promising she knew Sla would n't like it.

Copyright, 1928, The Call Publishing Co.

Anne Kilby departs in anger after quarrel about Rosemary—in tomorrow's chapter.

Rosemary Laughs with the Joy of Being Sloan Whitney's Pal

It would serve that snippy Lansing girl right. It would show her—and Smoky Graham—

Her eyes were dancing. "Wait till I tell Ellen!"

They slipped out unnoticed. His car was outside. "What will they say? Oh, won't they be angry! Now they'd envy me's gone." She snuggled into her place beside him with unholy joy. She'd never do this if they hadn't been so nasty—so downright nasty.

He paused to light a cigarette. "Why should anybody care?" he inquired. "And whose business is it what you and I do, anyway? We aren't married to 'em."

Rosemary flashed a quick look at him. What did he mean? Did he mean he really wasn't interested in Cecilia—all her "deare" and "darlings" were meaningless?

"No, we aren't married to 'em," she echoed, to cover her confusion.

"We've done all the marrying we're going to do." He threw the cigarette away.

Rosemary's lips trembled.

"Don't," he said, "don't be sad. Forget it, whatever it is. Come, we'll forget all the sadness in the world together. Shall we? Say yes, Rosemary."

Sadness? Was she ever sad? Could anyone be sad in this gay, laughing world, with the motor purring and the sweet Summer wind stirring, and Whitney's shoulder by her cheek? All these silly fears about him.

"It it a go?"

"It's a go."

"And we're going to be pals?"

day. Special occasion."

"But you're not going to step after today, are you?" he asked anxiously. "This is only a start."

"Oh I might be induced to take an occasional day off if I could find a pal mate," said she demurely.

"Any time you feel like frisking," he began.

She smiled tantalizingly at him. "Don't you think a little variety in company would be helpful?"

He showed signs of sulking. "If I bore you—"

"You are a mark, Bev, old dear!" she mocked. "It's so easy to lose and win time in the car. He never you that it isn't fair picking." His face cleared; it was the first time that she had abandoned the "Mister." "But how does one get to know people in New York when one is just out of hell?"

"People? What kind of people? Other girls?"

"No. I've no time for women."

"Oh! Men, then. Young fellows I suppose." This with a touch of jealousy.

"You're nothing but a boy yourself, Bev."

"I'm thirty."

"Are you really," she was amazed. "I'd have taken you for about my age. I'm almost twenty-three."

"The jumping-off age. I don't see how it is you haven't jumped off before now."

"Which way? Forward? Backwards or sideways? And how do you know I haven't?"

"It's Miss Thomas, isn't it?"

"It's Dyer today, Bev. And the 'Miss' may be just for business purposes. Speaking of jumping—why haven't you?"

He said it a powerful car don't you? And the farmhouse I own I've been married for years. I'll take you that you know. It did not like part of it when you put it that—"

"Not a bit. Why should I?"

"That's all right, then." He paused, he turned to look into the face of her question about going to know people. "You just run into em, I suppose, and through getting to know some you get to know others. There's a lot of fellows I could run around," he concluded rebukingly.

"Married?" she asked coyly.

"I'll tell you. Now, look here—I'm asking for information."

"Most of my pals are married. That is, they're married seven or eight months of the year, and the rest of the time they're Summer bachelors. At least quite a few. I like to do in the evenings is to go around the club and lick up tennis, play around with the ice cream—when they come in for a flutter. Never did care for it. I sorta thing, myself."

"I'll have to Summer bachelors," he recited briefly. I guess safe any ways."

"If we do—and we don't get bored to death with each other."

"Bored? Me? Why, I mean I can't marry 'em if they're already taken and then you'd be willing to marry—"

"I'm not sure I want to get married soon. I'm not sure I want to get married at all. I'm not sure I want to be tied down to anything. I'm not sure I want to be responsible for anybody but myself. I'm not sure I want to be married to anybody but myself. I'm not sure I want to be married to anybody but myself. I'm not sure I want to be married to

Skippy Got No Laughs

By Percy Crosby

WHAT KIND OF A FRIEND ARE YOU?

Whenever you don't hear from a friend at the expected time you immediately take it for granted that you have offended him in some way.

Is that true in your case?

If So-and-So does not ask you out every so often if your neighbor fails to run in to visit you, if your name is not mentioned as a delegate at some convention or meeting, if special favors are not meted out to you, are you "sore"? And do you think some one is disloyal or unfaithful or hurt?

If you are this sort you are not a desirable friend.

It is the man who "banks on you" regardless of suspicious circumstances that proves to be the biggest comfort as a friend, in the long run.

And if you would like a friend that can always excuse your shortcomings and think well of you, you must be that kind yourself.

Suppose you don't get a letter when you think it is due, don't scold about it.

Begin to think kind thoughts, begin to find excuses for the good friend that does not always play up on time and see if your life is not happier.

DAILY SHORT STORY

GALLAGHER'S TRUNK

By Arnold Williams

GALLAGHER moved. The place where he had been living was too far from the Herald Banner office where Gallagher industrially ground out copy from 8 o'clock every night until the time the morning edition went out to press. Besides, he didn't like the boarders with whom he was compelled to associate at Ma Terris'. They were dead, no life at all.

So Gallagher moved; it should have been very simple. The story should stop here. Gallagher had moved; he had often moved before. He paid Ma Terris the room rent for the past week, packed his belongings into his trunk and called up the transfer company to tell them to stop and remove it to the new address. Then Gallagher went down town. After the usual show he would go to work.

This done, Gallagher put the matter out of his mind. Work would be delivered next day and the peregrination would be needed at least if the new room's rates were better than the last.

Gallagher would come to the new home about 8 o'clock the next morning. During the day the trunk would be delivered. He hoped the driver wouldn't awaken him. They sometimes did make entirely too much noise.

When he arose at 2 in the afternoon, he noticed that the trunk hadn't arrived yet. Those transfer companies took their time. "Derned independent," Gallagher called them as he dressed himself, preparatory to the usual journey down town, where he would take in the usual movies.

Gallagher didn't think of the matter any more. Reporters are used to murders and world series games, and little things like missing trunks don't worry them in the least. It is didn't come today, there was another day.

"By the way," said Gallagher to the man at the desk as he walked into the office that evening, "I've moved. Live on Plum street now; 1121 Plum's the number."

"Yeah? Also by the way, go down to the police station. Murder mystery or something. Might be a good story in it."

"Sure," said the scribe.

On the way down, Gallagher happened to think of his trunk. "Queer," he said to himself, "ought be there by now. Have to call up the transfer company later."

As I said before, reporters get used to murders and such little events; the police in cities having a population of fifty thousand never do. So when Gallagher arrived at the station he found everybody running around in a state of high excitement.

"What's up?" he inquired.

"Think we've got a murder mystery," was the answer he received.

The town had two detectives, besides the regular force, most of whom were to be found in the station at that minute.

"Where's the body?"

"Oh, we ain't seen it yet. Hey, Pat, get that axe. Gonna take a look at it now."

Pat had the axe, if such it might be called. The aforesaid instrument was large enough to cleave a telephon pole in half.

"What's all the rumpus about?" Gallagher asked of one of the half dozen blue-clad minions of the law that were hurrying into the room in the rear of the station house.

"Can't get it open," one of them said. "It's locked."

"No, I mean the trunk."

"What trunk?"

"The trunk the body's in."

"What body?"

"The body that we think is in the trunk."

"Thought you couldn't get it open?"

"We can't."

"Oh, well, let's take a look."

Gallagher was taken into the room where the mysterious trunk was to be opened.

There in the middle of the room it stood, Gallagher's trunk! It was a little battered, especially around the lock, which had resisted attacks by everything from tack-hammers to battle-axes.

"Hold on there," exclaimed Gallagher to the captain who was preparing to make an assault upon the unfortunate trunk with the ax which Pat had just brought.

"That's my trunk! Where'd you get it?"

"People at 2111 Plum street called up this afternoon. Said someone had left a trunk on their porch. Thought somebody had murdered somebody and put the body in the trunk. Looked suspicious—"

"2111 Plum street? Gallagher began to see the light.

"Here," he explained, "that's no murder mystery trunk—that's my trunk—nothin' in there but my clothes." The young reporter produced a key, and shoved it into the trunk's lock.

"See what happened is that in sending the trunk to my new address I got the numbers scrambled. Married it 2111 Plum street when it should have gone to 1121—sorry, gentlemen—no murder just an error."

"Dumb—plain dumb, the police captain said sullenly, as his chance for glory of clearing up a real-life murder mystery vanished into nothing.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By Helen Rowland

CONSIDER the way of a man with a woman and a motor-car.

Lo, until she ariseth from the cushions of the rear seat and taketh her place at the wheel, a man giveth his wife NO PEACE.

Yet, once she setteth her foot upon the starter and her hand upon the gear-shift, he knoweth no peace, himself!

Before she learneth to drive the family car, a man is a "martyr" to his wife's indolence—and alier she learneth, he is a "victim" of her feeble-mindedness.

Before a woman seeketh to run the automobile, a man complaineth bitterly of his weariness. She is a bump upon a log and a piece of excess luggage.

But after she hath learned to start and stop the engine, she is a thorn in his side, a file upon his nerves, and a babe that playeth with a bomb.

While his wife reclineth at ease and permitted him to guide the machine through traffic, a man grumbleth incessantly, that he is forced to "do all the driving."

Yet, when she exchangeth seats with him, and undertaketh his task, he crieth unto heaven at the crudeness of her technique, the rashness of her ways, and the dumbness of her understanding.

Go to. Before a woman learneth to drive, her husband lamenteth that he is but her chauffeur who must "tote her around" to bridge parties and upon shopping tours.

And, after she hath learned to drive, he waileth and gnasheth his teeth, because she hath the car OUT at all hours, and it is never his to command.

Yea, before she setteth her driver's license, he groaneth that life is being "worn out"—and after she hath become an expert, he moaneth that the CAR is being worn out!

Verily, verily, to watch his WIFE drive tormenteth a man's nerves, even as the sight of a babe that playeth with his watch or a small boy that fooleth with his gun.

For a woman hath been known to FORGET that her husband is running the car, in moments of rare abstraction.

But NO man taketh his mind off his eye off his wife for a single moment, while she is in the driver's seat!

Nay, that is the ONE time in all her life, when a woman receiveth her husband's entire and UNDIVIDED ATTENTION!

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

A POSTMAN with seven children is suing his wife for divorce. He says that by the time he gets through piecing the floor with the kids, the sun is up and he has to start walking for the government.

HE told the judge he wanted a decree in order to give his feet a rest.

HE says his wife is a lovely woman but she should have married a centipede.

HE'S tired of walking in her sleep.

THE income tax allows him four hundred dollars for each child, but he has to spend most of it for bunion plasters.

HE has a corn for every baby.

HE says he'd rather pay the four hundred dollars and let the internal revenue department do his walking for him.

SOME nights he gets drowsy but his wife sprinkles tacks on the carpet to keep him awake.

BUT that doesn't bother him. He says, his big toes with a hammer to take his mind off the pain.

THE poor fellow is trying now to learn to sleep standing up. He's thinking of taking lessons from a horse.

HE said he knew that marriage was the road to heaven, but he didn't think you had to walk it.

A BACHELOR may lead a lonely life, but his feet are always in good shape.

LOVE is all right for the heart, but it's tough on the arches.

HE says he wishes now that he'd had a bicycle clause inserted in his license.

HE claims that the next time he gets wed, he's going to be married in the department of motor vehicles.

L. E'S done so much talking at night he's beginning to think that he was married by a walking delegate.

WHAT the poor fellow needs now is the advice of two good men A lawyer and chiropodist.

HIGH pacing the floor with the children, and if the judge doesn't give him a divorce he's going to take a job as night watchman so that he can get some sleep.

FOR Sour Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentation in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for published smart sayings. Address "Smart Sayings, Boston Evening American.

A friend of mine, Dr. X., has a little girl six years old. On Christmas he bought a small made-up Christmas tree and placed it in his dining room. The child, on being allowed into the room on Christmas morning, looked at the tree and exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, Santy has brought me a plant."

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Will you kindly advise me what I should do with an evil-minded husband? We have been married twenty-seven years and have had nothing but hardships. Now my three sons are men. Two are married and the son I have at home is very fond of me and wants to take me to the theatre two or three times a week. But every time I go I must quarrel with my husband and hear him call me evil names.

MARRIED LIFE.

AFTER twenty-seven years of married life can you not adjust yourself to your husband's disposition and temperament without quarrels? Surely he has fine characteristics, which you admire. Try to bring out the best in his nature by treating him with tactful kindness and thoughtful consideration. Make his home comfortable and restful.

If he likes having you at home do not go out evenings with your son more than once or twice weekly. Do you ask your husband to go along with you? No one likes feeling left out, you know.

Treat him according to the Golden Rule of kindness and I feel sure that you and he will enjoy the declining years of your lives together.

Shameful Slaughter

300 Fine Specimens of the American Buffalo Will Furnish "Sport" for Wealthy "Sportsmen."

"Pawnee Bill's" protest against the "last great buffalo hunt," scheduled for some day next month on Antelope Island in the Great Salt Lake of Utah, should find many sympathizers in Boston, where there was staunch support twenty years ago for the American Bison Society's plan for the preservation and increase of the species.

The buffalo that are going to be shot down by "sportsmen" within the next week or two, unless friends of the animal in or out of office intervene, were used not long since in the filming of a story for the motion pictures. Their owner, it has been reported, says they are "not worth what it would cost" to get them to his South Dakota ranch. Hence, the wholesale slaughter, as planned.

"I protest," Mr. G. W. Lillie ["Pawnee Bill"] writes to The Evening American from Pawnee, Oklahoma, "and ask every red-blooded sportsman to take hold and save the few remaining buffalo. Years ago, fifty million were slaughtered and wasted, to our everlasting disgrace. We must not heap more shame on ourselves by killing, FOR PAY, the few buffalo we have left."

When the American Bison Society appealed, in 1908, for $10,000 with which to establish a herd of buffalo on the Flathead Reserve in Montana, the FIRST subscriber was a Concord woman, Mrs. Emma L. Mee. Massachusetts contributed $2,320 of the fund. Mrs. Ezra R. Thayer, of Boston, gave $200 and raised $310 more.

The late Austin Corbin, railroad builder, maintained a herd of more than 100 buffalo at that time in Corbin Park, a few miles out of Newport, N. H. Mr. Corbin made the Bison Society a present of a pair of the animals. One of his New Hampshire neighbors, the late Ernest Harold Baynes, celebrated naturalist, enlisted in the cause and lectured up and down New England and on the Chautauqua circuit, on the necessity of preserving the buffalo.

How SOME "red-blooded Americans" have felt on the subject of the needless slaughter of these animals may be shown by the words of the late John Schuyler Crosby, of New York, who wrote:

"The real cause of the almost extermination of the buffaloes, outside the killing by the Indians, was not only by the demands of commerce in skins, heads and horns, etc., but by so-called 'sportsmen' (God forgive me for applying such a term to these wanton butchers) who slaughtered these animals for their tongues alone, and also would shoot them down and leave the great beasts to die, a food for wolves and other animals."

John Schuyler Crosby knew his subject. Personal aide-de-camp to General Philip Sheridan during and after the Civil War, he was with Sheridan on Indian campaigns in 1867-68-69-70. William F. Cody ("Buffalo Bill"), then in his early twenties, was their chief of scouts. Custer was of the same time and territory.

Ten or a dozen years later, as territorial Governor of Montana, Col. Crosby invited the Governors of Idaho, UTAH, Dakota and Wyoming to Helena, to talk over and take steps toward the preservation of the large game of the Northwest. "This meeting," he wrote years afterwards when the East, at least, was keenly interested in the work, "resulted in our agreeing to send a special message to our respective legislatures ASKING FOR THE PASSAGE OF SUCH STRINGENT LAWS AS WOULD PROTECT THE LARGE GAME AND PUNISH ALL OFFENDERS."

This was done, Col. Crosby went on to say, "resulting in the arrest of many pot hunters and so-called 'sportsmen.' It was due to this concert of action that any game was left in the Northwest."

It might be helpful if "Pawnee Bill," and other gentlemen of the West who feel as he does about the slaughter set for next month, would inquire what became of the laws enacted more than forty years ago, upon the urging of Governor Crosby and his contemporaries. These laws may have a tooth in them, yet.

Meanwhile, others who are interested might write a word of protest to the Honorable George H. Dern, Governor of Utah, at Salt Lake City.

Sardonic Result of War

A situation not without its humor, in the sight of the high gods, is furnished us by Germany's taking her place in the League of Nations.

For of all the nations afflicted by the war, strangely enough Germany, the conquered one, seems to be the soundest economically.

France trembles on the verge of bankruptcy, Italy and England are torn by domestic problems, but Germany has re-established her currency and looks hopefully toward the future.

This ought to be a good lesson for the race as to the value of war. It seems to be harder on the victorious than it is on those who lose the battle.

Coal and Bagpipes

Some idea of the intimate correlation of various forms of business was contained in a recent press dispatch.

The Scottish bagpipe manufacturers were seriously affected by the coal strike among the miners.

Some of the best customers of bagpipes were the pipe bands in the mining areas, where there are more than a million men out of work.

When they had no more money to spend on bagpipes it very seriously affected the venders of these musical instruments.

Frank and Lazy

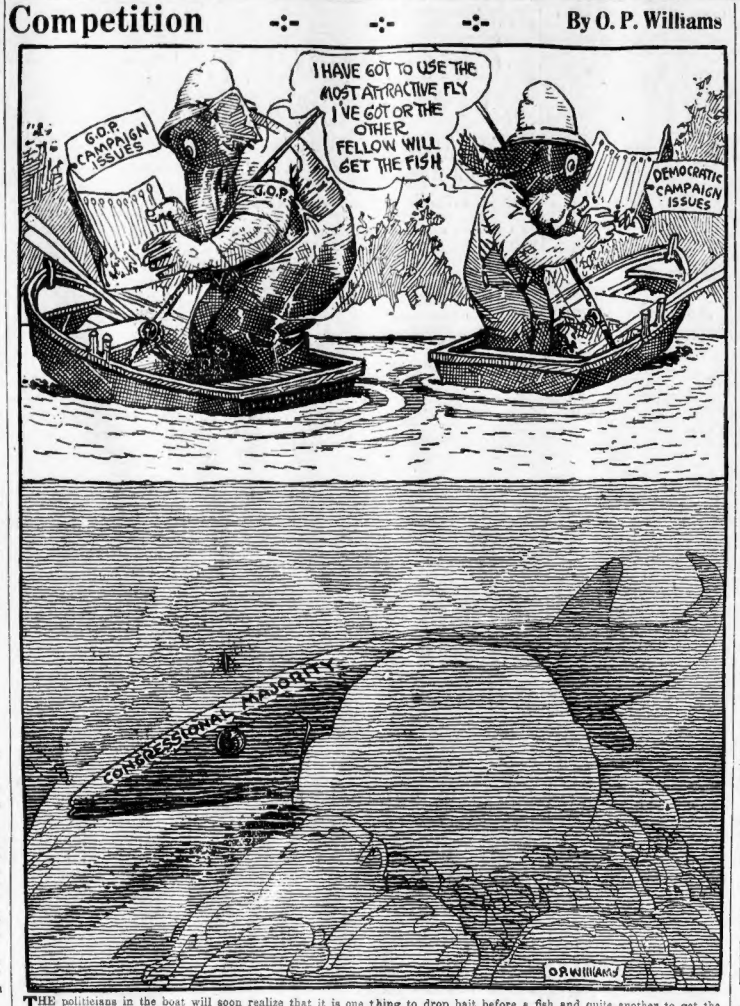
Teachers meeting from fourteen States vote the chief weakness of present-day school children to be laziness, and the chief virtue frankness.

Not so bad.

When you have frankness you know where you stand and have a basis to build on.

And all that laziness means in childhood is that the child has not yet found the thing that really interests him.

Competition -:- -:- -:- By O. P. Williams



THE politicians in the boat will soon realize that it is one thing to drop bait before a fish and quite another to get the fish to bite. The fish in this instance—the American voter—is showing very little interest in politics of any kind. Of course his political appetite may increase. But it is liable to be capricious and—thirsty.

TOMATOES

CURATOR DAN HASKINS, who takes care of the population of the FRANKLIN PARK ZOO, faces an unusual problem. "JAP," the MALAY-SUNBEAR, who resides in the monkey house, developed a liking for tomatoes, and when that vegetable went out of season, "Jap" took to heart the loss of the dainty. With tomatoes selling around 35 cents a pound, it looks as though "JAP" must do without.

SKIN DEEP

"Don't marry for beauty. Sometimes a little paint covers an old model. Do not marry too young. Puppy love sometimes lends to a dog's life." This was urged by REV. WILL H. GOUGHTON, addressing young men and women who attended a conference in TREMONT TEMPLE.

AUTO PLATES

Approximately 450,000 pairs of the 1927 automobile number plates have been turned out at the STATE PRISON. About 150,000 more are expected to be ready on January 1. EDWARD C. R. HADLEY, DEPUTY COMMISSIONER of CORRECTION, says the plates are better than last year's. "Better grade steel is being used and the background finish will wear longer," he said. The plates have a maroon background with white enamelled figures.

MAGIC LAW

A career on the stage or in the courts pleading for clients is the choice that HARRIS SALTMAN, a law student at BOSTON UNIVERSITY, is going to make before long. HARRIS is a born magician, according to his fellow students, who claim that he picks quarters from pockets which hold lowly pennies.

FOREIGN VISITORS IN AMERICA

By DR. FRANK CRANE

FEW members of royalty have visited America who left a better impression than did Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden.

He stayed for a month.

He didn't let Broadway, Long Island or Palm Beach usurp him. He devoted his whole time to no "set" or clique.

He met people of many kinds. He roughed it in Yellowstone Park and rode down the Grand Canyon.

In all parts of the country people gained the same impression—that he was a real man.

During his stay he showed that he was really interested in understanding America and the American people. And he went away with probably a better idea of the life the average American lives than any other distinguished visitor who has stayed here an equal length of time.

As he sailed away from Hawaii, where he kept house in a cottage on the beach of Waikiki during his stay, he expressed the wish that the world could know more about us.

With this wish all Americans heartily concur.

America is a vast country with a thousand varied aspects. Unlike some foreign countries where all the people possess similar national characteristics, different sections of the United States present different qualities in their inhabitants.

The nation cannot be understood by visiting an eastern seaport or taking a hurried trip across the continent in a Pullman.

To understand it you have to understand the common people of different parts of the country. Their votes largely decide the important actions of the nation.

To understand the common people you have to meet them.

This is not easy for a distinguished foreign visitor. It requires effort and determination.

If he is not careful he is passed from one committee and dinner to another and ends by going home with as vague an idea of what the people are really like as if he had flown across the country in an airplane which did not land.

He meets the cosmopolites, whose traits are the traits of the world, rather than the representative Americans.

Potato War in France

By Garrett P. Serviss.

WHEN the insect battalions strike at the potato they are cutting the supply line of their human enemies. The potato is, perhaps, America's best present to the world. Victor Hugo might have been tempted to say: "Grace gave architecture; America gave the potato!"

In the days when I was a boy the "potato bug" marched from Colorado to New York, spreading terror as he advanced, everywhere victorious, everywhere hated for his stripes, everywhere proving himself to be an insect barbarian.

Thousands of boys on the farms bought their Fourth of July firecrackers from the proceeds of liberal rewards offered by farmers and gardeners for potato bug scalps. The invaders fell by millions, but millions instantly took the places of the fallen.

The newspapers, and not only the "rural" ones, were full of news and rumors about the changing phases of the great battle in the potato fields. Horace Greely took a hand in the fight, editorially and physically, and both in shirt sleeves and white jacket, in manuscript, like potato bug tracks.

Then, as I remember, "Paris green" came like a rescue from the sky and saved the day for the farmers, though the victory was not quite a Waterloo.

Now, so many years after, I happen to find myself in France in the midst of another sweeping invasion of potato bugs, under the more scientific name of "Dorypohora," which a French publication described as: "Insect coleoptera, origin sire d' Amerique, qui ravage les plants de pommes de terres."

Well, if we did originate the potato bug, did we not also originate the potato? We are as much ashamed of the one as we are proud of the other.

It appears to be a serious business, this invasion of France by potato bugs. The invaders marched in two great sweeping columns, one advancing eastward from the departments of Correze and Creuse, south west of the center of France; the other northward from the departments of Vienne and Maine-et-Loire toward Britanny.

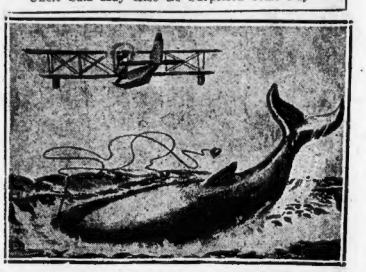
The Whale Is Surprised

Uncle Sam May Also Be Surprised Some Day



HARPOONING WHALES FROM A FLYING MACHINE. ATTENTION, PLEASE, UNCLE SAM!

Poor Mr. and Mrs. Whale are not interested in the sky, they never look at it. They care as little about the sky and the things that can happen above as poor Uncle Sam's Government cares about flying machines and the things that THEY might do.

Along the top of the water the whale goes, blowing up steam and water to show where he is.

Along through the air, above the ocean, comes the flying machine, scooting low. Down comes the great harpoon, and the live whale becomes a dead whale. You will notice that to the end of two ropes attached to the harpoon, there are buoys, round floating balls. When the whale is dead, surface boats come along, see these floating balls, collect the whales and tow them to a whaling ship where they are reduced to oil.

This is a sad story for the whales and it is a highly improved method of fishing.

Some of these days that large, fat, extremely prosperous gold reserve whale, named Uncle Sam, may feel the blow of a harpoon from the air. He hasn't the whale's excuse. In fact, he INVENTED the flying machine.

But while he invented it, he hasn't known enough to adopt it or employ it.

If he isn't careful, he will known, one of these days, exactly how this whale felt when the harpoon came down. THAT'S ALL.

Chewing Gum in Europe

One of our great makers of chewing gum has one factory on the Rhine, but it has not been found adequate to take care of the European business, and another is to be opened.

The new factory will be on a part of the site of the Wembley Exposition, near London.

The French speak of "le monde qui s'Americainise," which means the Americanizing world.

The triumph of the habit of chewing gum, together with the successful careers of the potato, the tomato and of tobacco, certainly show that America is coming strong.

The Metric System

Beginning January 1, 1927, the metric system will be adopted by Russia.

This system is in use in almost every country except Great Britain and the United States.

Strangely enough, these two most democratic countries are most strongly in the inertia of tradition.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHY do women grow so weary of housework? Why do they feel so unfairly treated when they think of other women, those "lucky women who have jobs"?

"The same old thing, day after day—"

Wives use that phrase over and over. They use it with bitterness and rebellion when they are young. As they grow older a certain disgusted listlessness creeps into their voices. Their spirits seem drained and anemic.

Men grow tired of their jobs in the same way. Women rarely realize this. The bored wife watches her husband go away in the morning, if only she could go away like that. It must be so wonderful to be part of that free, outer world in which Things Happen.

"Men have a snap," she says to herself. "Women always get the worst of it."

This isn't so. A man's job becomes as monotonous as a woman's after he once becomes customed to the routine. The husband in his turn, bending over the sales ot desk or bench, loathes the familiar round of his duties and envies the wife who has "nothing to do but fool around the house."

There's apt to be bitterness between them when they meet at night.

"I've been shut up in the house all day," she says, secretly pitying herself and reproaching him for having spoiled her life.

"I've been slaving in the office all day," says he, thinking resentfully of the liberties of foot-free men.

They're Both Wrong

Each one feels that the other is, in some way, to blame.

They're both wrong.

The fault is their own. They're misusing their respective jobs in the wrong way.

Any job is deadly if you play it without imagination or originality. I have seen mining engineers who were utterly bored because their amazing adventures had hardened into a routine. Famous artists—successful business men are often as weary of their jobs as the drab little housekeeper in a shabby apartment.

And, on the other hand, I have seen poverty stricken laborers in the backwoods who managed to embroider their days with color.

THE DRAMATIC ELEMENT—That's the answer.

The element of the unexpected—the colorful, even the dangerous—that's what keeps an existence alive.

Bored spirits are really anemic.

Something New

How's a person going to put redness into the adventure of living? Suppose you haven't much money—

It isn't a question of money.

Money is as apt to be a hindrance as a help in this matter. It's a question of finding something new and different—doing something out of the ordinary. Creating an avocation for example:

There's Jim Foreman, who took up cabinet work after he'd had that nervous breakdown. The doctor told him there wasn't really a thing the matter with him, except sticking in the same old rut, day after day. So he fixed up a little corner of the kitchen—put in a bench and some tools, and life holds a "secret cave" for Jim now as it did when he was a kid.

And there's Lucille Evans. Bright woman, Lucille, but she got so tired and edgy the family could hardly live with her. Someone persuaded her to take a course in short story writing. Probably she'll never sell a story, but it's "something different." There's adventure waiting now.

It isn't only the new work that has saved Jim and Lucille. It's THE BUSINESS OF DRAMATIZING THEMSELVES. Changing their old familiar selves. Adopting new personalities, making a little spotlight of novelty and then getting into it. It's like dressing up and going to a masquerade ball.

THEY'RE GETTING A KICK OUT OF THEMSELVES.

That's the secret of healthy, happy life.
